Meeting In New Jersey

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in this small college town today for a summit meeting of the world's two superpowers on dangerous international tensions.

The U.S. chief executive flew to Philadelphia and boarded a helicopter for the brief flight to Glassboro. Upon landing he and his party were transported by an eight - car mortorcade the quarter of a mile to the home of the college president, Thomas E. Robinson, whose Victorian-style parlor was chosen for the historic confrontation.

The site for the summit was geographically almost equidistant from New York and Washington—135 miles from the U.S. capital and 111 from New York. The leaders of the two great nuclear powers were meeting one another half-way after days of suspenseful negotiations on a Big Two parley.

While he waited for the Soviet leader to arrive, President Johnson talked with Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey. The President's expression was solemn as he waited the confrontation, a direct result of a special United Nations General Assembly meeting on the Middle East war.

The Soviet premier's motorcade drew up near the mansion at 11:20 a.m., EDT, a half-hour after the President's party had arrived.

President Johnson shook hands with Kosygin and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Both leaders smiled broadly.

Johnson and Kosygin posed briefly for cameramen and the two entered Hollybush, about 23 minues behind time for their scheduled meeting.

Tight security ringed the house. Police were spaced about 30 feet apart to hold back thousands of curious who had gathered across the road from the mansion. Nearly every community in South New Jersey sent police to assist Secret Servicemen in the security operation.

Johnson and Kosygin compromised, with each journeying about halfway between New York and Washington for their 11 a.m. appointment and lunch at Glassboro State College, in this little town 15 miles south of Philadelphia.

The White House said there was no agenda for the meeting but indicated the President planned to raise such issues as the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Vietnam, the proposed treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, and the U.S. proposal to limit the U.S.-Soviet antiballistic missile race.

However, the Big Two meeting was expected to last little longer than two hours — Kosygin wanted to be back in New York by 3 p.m.—so there was small prospect of summit solutions today to basic East-West issues.

Diplomats looked for less tangible results:

— It is the first face-to-face meeting of the men on each end of the Washington-Moscow hot line. Even if they reached no substantive agreements, they might understand each other and the other's position better.

— Those around the globe who look to the great powers for evidence of their interest in avoiding conflict might feel reassured by the meeting.

At the last U.S.-Soviet summit, in Vienna in May 1961, President John F. Kennedy and Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed on neutrality and independence for Laos. But they disagreed over Berlin, which became a crisis point later that year.

The news that it was about to become an historic site took the people of Glassboro, like most everyone else, by complete surprise.

"If I hadn't heard about it on the radio, I never would have known anything about it," said one of the town's 16 policemen.

George Christian, White House press secretary, said Johnson phoned New Jersey's Democratic Gov. Richard J.

At Wellsville Stores

Safe 'Cracked' In 2 Enterings

A safe was "peeled" and an undetermined amount of cash taken during the night from the Super Foods Market at 415 Main St., Wellsville. Cash and merchandise, including eight small weapons, also were stolen from the connecting Western Auto Store.

As of late this morning, investigators had not determined how entrance was made.

A REAR door facing an alley was open, but this had been secured with an inside padlock and is believed to be the means used for the thieves to escape.

Both establishments are owned by Dean Hudson of Wellsville, whose other supermarket, Hudson's Valu-King on the Y. & O. Rd., was burglarized in a similar manner earlier this month. At that time an estimated $1,000 was stolen when a safe was also battered.

The Super Foods safe, an old square-door type mounted on wheels, was pummeled and drilled until it opened. It sits in a small room at the rear of the store in back of the meat counter.

Wellsville police, sheriff's deputies and store and insurance officials sealed off the area pending the arrival of a mobile crime lab from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation's London headquarters.

The burglars apparently went to the Western Auto portion of the building and made off with seven .22- caliber pistols, a .38-caliber gun, a 9-inch portable television, two tape recorders, some radios and the money from two cash registers and a

Senate Hassle Erupts Over Case On Dodd

Recesses In Uproar Without Voting On Misconduct Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tangled in a parliamentary snarl and with tempers getting short, the Senate recessed in an uproar Thursday night without reaching a vote on financial misconduct charges against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd.

The hassle erupted after the Senate for the second time in two days overwhelmingly beat back a bid to soften the possible action against Dodd.

"I'd like to get this over with one way or another," the Connecticut Democrat pleaded wearily amid all the confusion, but action was put off at least until this afternoon.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield protested, "We are wasting an awful lot of time on legal double-talk."

After 2½ hours of wrangling, Mansfield abandoned efforts to obtain a vote and asked that the Senate stand in recess. He abruptly stalked out of the chamber as several senators leaped to their feet shouting "No! No!"

The Senate ethics committee has recommended that Dodd be censured on two counts—converting political funds to his personal benefit and double-billing the Senate and private groups for travel expenses.

The only vote at Thursday's session was on a surprise proposed amendment by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., to reprimand

Tax-Raising Work Slated In Assembly

Gray, Ohio Senate Majority Leader, 'Will Carry Ball'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Legislature plunges into the business of raising taxes Monday after nearly a week of uncertainty over who was going to carry the ball.

But before the lawmakers adjourned Thursday for weekend recess, Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray R-3 Miami, volunteered.

Gray said he would sponsor an administration tax bill to raise an additional $252 million for education in the biennium starting July 1.

His action ended unrest among senators never anxious to get their names on the tax increase bill. The bill had been booted about the Senate since early in the week.

Gray said the Senate would return at 4 p.m. Monday—four hours earlier than usual— to receive the measure and also to permit the Senate Finance Committee to take final action on the proposed $4.9 billion 1967-69 budget.

The budget bill must be signed by Gov. James A. Rhodes no later than next Friday, end of the fiscal year, in order for state payrolls and other obligations to be met on time.

As the majority leader was making his announcements for Monday activities, the Ohio Retail Merchants Association unveiled some tax plans.

George B. Hammond, executive director, said the organization might have ready by Monday a tax bill of its own of-

Diplomatic Eyes Glued On Summit

Private Discussions Go On At U.N. Over Middle East Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats pursued intensive private discussions at the United Nations today on the tangled issues of the Middle East crisis with one eye on the meeting between President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Behind the scenes consultations at the United Nations were considered still in an embryonic stage. Most delegates predicted a long period of hard bargaining before the emergency session of the assembly receives a resolution that could command the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption.

But feeling was widespread that prospects for a solution to the Arab-Israeli dispute hinged to a great extent on the outcome of the summit meeting in Glassboro, N.J.

Attention at the morning session of the assembly debate also was focused on the statement by Premier Ion Gheorge Maurer of Communist Romania, who has been taking a leading role in trying to work out a compromise resolution. He was one of six speakers listed for the morning session.

One Romanian source said his government was not rejecting the strong support given the Arabs by the Soviet Union and other Communist countries but wanted to explore the conflict fully in an attempt to alleviate the tensions and find a solution that could lead to permanent peace in the area.

As to the harsh anti-Israel resolution introduced in the assembly by the Soviets, the source said it was "too early to pronounce curselves on any resolution."

A factor in this attitude apparently was that Romanian Foreign Minister Cornelius Manescu is slated to become president of the next regular session of the General Assembly in the fall, the first Communist to hold the post.

Because the Middle East is expected to remain a dominant problem at the United Nations for some time, Romania seems to want to maintain a flexible stand that would do nothing to jeopardize Manescu's impartial-

In Bid To Solve Differences

U.S., Soviet Government Heads Have Met 6 Times

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Soviet heads of government have met six major times before today in efforts to thrash out differences between the two world powers, with highly mixed and often controversial results.

Today's meeting between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin will add the name of Glassboro, N.J., to such places as Potsdam and Yalta, Geneva and Camp David —where issues affecting history have been discussed but seldom settled.

Three leadership meetings during World War II, when the United States and Soviet Union were allied against Nazi Germany, marked the high point of cooperation between the two world giants.

The first, at Tehran, Iran, in November 1943, brought together President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin and Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill of Great Britain.

The discussion centered on U.S.-British plans for an invasion of Europe, strongly pushed by Stalin to ease Nazi military pressure on the Soviet Union. Roosevelt issued a post-conference statement saying: "We came here with hope and determination. We leave here, friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose."

Roosevelt met once again with Stalin and Churchill, at Yalta in the Soviet Crimea, in February 1945—three months before the President's death. The U.S. and British leaders agreed at Yalta to Soviet demands that a government friendly to the U.S.S.R. be established in Poland.

Stalin, in turn, conceded to U.S. proposals for the makeup of the Security Council within the United Nations and secretly pledged to enter the war against Japan within three months after an Allied victory in Europe.

The east for the third summit meeting included President Harry S. Truman, Stalin, Churchill and Clement Atlee, soon to succeed Churchill as

20 Reported Killed When Copters Collide

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) —Two huge troop-carrying Marine helicopters collided in flight at the New River Marine Air Facility today and reports said at least 20 were killed and a dozen injured.

The helicopters, one a HUE1 and the other a CH53A "Sea Stallion," crashed at the end of a runway in a wooded area.

The Sea Stallion was carrying Marine troopers on a routine training mission and was coming in for a landing, a base spokesman said. The other craft was practicing touch-and-go landing.

The spokesman said the second craft apparently rose from the runway and struck the other helicopter in its belly.

House GOP Eyes Shafer Tax Program

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House Republican leadership scheduled a final roll call on the bulk of Gov. Shafer's $267 million tax program today but reserved the right to postpone action if the necessary votes for passage were not available.

The Republicans planned to caucus soon after the House convened to determine how many Democratic votes they will need in order to pass the various revenue raising proposals and send them to the Senate, which is in recess until Monday.

House Speaker Kenneth B. Lee, R-Sullivan, said at least two Democratic votes would be required, since the GOP holds a bare constitutional majority in the chamber and two Republicans are ill.

Minority Democrats continued to voice opposition to new taxes in the absence of budget cuts. They contended the governor was exaggerating his revenue needs to the tune of $220 million.

Lee said he hoped to line up 100 available Republicans behind the tax proposals, but he admitted that at least one, Rep. George Alexander, R - Clarion, remained steadfast in his opposition. There were reports of others.

North Viet Power Plant Also Target

U.S. Pilots Bomb Trains, Missile Site Near Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. pilots today reported successful attacks on two trains northeast of Hanoi, a missile site northwest of the Red capital and the Nam Dinh power plant southeast of Hanoi.

U.S. military headquarters said there was no significant action in 20 previously announced American and allied ground actions, but Saigon announcements often lag far behind operations in the field.

The 125 missions flown against North Vietnam Thursday cost another American plane, a Navy A4 Skyhawk downed by ground fire west of Haiphong. The pilot is missing.

U.S. headquarters said it was the 589th American combat plane lost over the North, including one other not previously announced.

North Vietnam claimed three American planes were shot down and "a number of pilots" captured.

A civilian cargo plane and a U.S. Air Force jet collided over the outskirts of Saigon Thursday, killing all seven American crewmen aboard the cargo plane. The two fliers in the Air Force RF4C Phantom reconnaissance plane parachuted and suffered only minor injuries.

F105 Thunderchiefs from bases in Thailand pounced on the two trains on the Phu Xuyen railroad siding 31 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilots on the first flight reported their bombs were on target. A second flight of pilots said they observed 10 boxcars destroyed on one train and 25 on the other.

It was not known what the boxcars were carrying, if anything. Military spokesmen said they had no reports of secondary explosions.

Navy pilots hammered the electric power plant 46 miles southeast of Hanoi with 1,000— and 2,000-pound bombs and reported setting off a large explosion and fire at the 7,500-kilowatt facility that serves the Nam Dinh area.

The last raids in the Nam Dinh area were May 22 and May 24, when American warplanes attacked the railroad yards.

The strike Thursday was the first against the power plant in more than a year. It was reported knocked out in the previous raid but apparently was rebuilt.

Air Force F105 pilots also reported hitting a surface-to-air missile--SAM—site 64 miles northwest of Hanoi. Pilots said black smoke rose 500 feet from a secondary explosion.

To Pick Own National Chairman

Young GOP In Rebellion Against Party's Seniors

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — In open revolt against domination by the senior GOP, Young Republicans are selecting a national chairman who may have the future of their organization in his hands.

Senior Republicans reacted quickly to Thursday's rejection by the Young Republican Federation convention of a series of amendments to their constitution which would have strengthened the hand of GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss in dealing with them.

The young GOP first rejected a constitutional amendment that would allow the senior organization to put two observers on the Young Republicans executive board.

Then, perhaps fearful they had gone too far in rebuffing the man who holds the purse strings, they approved a change in bylaws to permit two members of the Republican National Committee to sit with the Young Republicans executive group. The bylaws change could be rescinded at any time by another convention.

To emphasize its departure from routine support of the national party, the convention declined to give unanimous approval of a resolution offered by the moderate Pennsylvania delegation praising Bliss. Instead, this issue was put to a voice vote in which a few conservatives shouted their minority dissent.

Pope Renews Celibacy Rule For Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today renewed the Roman Catholic Church's ancient rule of celibacy for its priests despite growing pressure for relaxation of the ban on marriage.

In an encylical letter of more than 13,000 words — the sixth of his four-year reign — the Pope said in the opening words: "Priestly celibacy has been guarded by the Church for centuries as a brilliant jewel and retains its value undiminished even in our time when mentality and structures have undergone such profound changes."

The Pope rejected various arguments against celibacy and cited reasons for maintaining the rule.

The encylical was titled in Latin "sacerdotalis Celibatus" — priestly celibacy — its opening words.

A circular letter to all the bishops of the Church, it was issued in the major modern languages as well.

Los Angeles Police Reinforced For LBJ

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police, reinforcing their ranks to an unusual extent, expect up to 20,000 antiwar demonstrators to march around the hotel where President Johnson is to appear tonight.

A police spokesman said about 1,000 officers will guard Johnson and the Century Plaza Hotel at a Democratic party fund-raising dinner-ball.

A White House aide said the President would fly to Los Angeles following his meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

F105 Thunderchiefs from bases in Thailand pounced on the two trains on the Phu Xuyen railroad siding 31 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilots on the first flight reported their bombs were on target. A second flight of pilots said they observed 10 boxcars destroyed on one train and 25 on the other.

It was not known what the boxcars were carrying, if anything. Military spokesmen said they had no reports of secondary explosions.

Navy pilots hammered the electric power plant 46 miles scutheast of Hanoi with 1,000— and 2,000-pound bombs and reported setting off a large explosion and fire at the 7,500-kilowatt facility that serves the Nam Dinh area.

The last raids in the Nam Dinh area were May 22 and May 24, when American warplanes attacked the railroad yards.

The strike Thursday was the first against the power plant in more than a year. It was reported knocked out in the previous raid but apparently was rebuilt.

Air Force F105 pilots also reported hitting a surface-to-air missile—SAM—site 64 miles northwest of Hanoi. Pilots said black smoke rose 500 feet from a secondary explosion.

To Pick Own National Chairman

Young GOP In Rebellion Against Party's Seniors

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — In open revolt against domination by the senior GOP, Young Republicans are selecting a national chairman who may have the future of their organization in his hands.

Senior Republicans reacted quickly to Thursday's rejection by the Young Republican Federation convention of a series of amendments to their constitution which would have strengthened the hand of GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss in dealing with them.

The young GOP first rejected a constitutional amendment that would allow the senior organization to put two observers on the Young Republicans executive board.

Then, perhaps fearful they had gone too far in rebuffing the man who holds the purse strings, they approved a change in bylaws to permit two members of the Republican National Committee to sit with the Young Republicans executive group. The bylaws change could be rescinded at any time by another convention.

To emphasize its departure from routine support of the national party, the convention declined to give unanimous approval of a resolution offered by the moderate Pennsylvania delegation praising Bliss. Instead, this issue was put to a voice vote in which a few conservatives shouted their minority dissent.

Los Angeles Police Reinforced For LBJ

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police, reinforcing their ranks to an unusual extent, expect up to 20,000 antiwar demonstrators to march around the hotel where President Johnson is to appear tonight.

A police spokesman said about 1,000 officers will guard Johnson and the Century Plaza Hotel at a Democratic party fund-raising dinner-ball.

That's nearly one-fifth of the Los Angeles police force.

A White House aide said the President would fly to Los Angeles following his meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Teacher Retirement Benefits Increase Waits Shafer's OK

HARRISBURG (AP) — A bill to increase teacher's retirement benefits by 17 per cent was lying on Gov. Shafer's desk today awaiting his signature.

The measure was cleared by the House Thursday by a unanimous vote. Earlier it had been passed by the Senate with the strong backing of the 80,000-member Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Under the bill, school employes would be eligible to retire at half salary at age 60 if they had 30 years service. At present, they need 35.

In addition, contributions to the retirement fund would be based on a flat 5½ per cent of salary rather than a conditional rate predicated on age and sex. The state and local school district would increase their contributions.

A PSEA spokesman said more than 100,000 teachers, administrators and other employes would be affected by the legislation, which also provides for improved disability, early retirement and death benefits.

A House source estimated the additional annual cost to the state would approximate $1.2 million.

In other action, the House unanimously passed and sent to the Senate a bill to give municipalities an additional two months to meet requirements of the 1966 Sewage Facilities Act.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. William O. Shuman, D-Franklin would postpone the effective date of the act from July 1 to September 1. Shuman said the Health Department had not had sufficient time to formulate rules and regulations in compliance with the act.

The act requires communities to submit plans for sewage disposal systems and provides for state grants to help meet the cost. Several municipalities have complained that they have not been given adequate time.

U.S.-Soviet

prime minister. It was held in Potsdam just outside bomb-shattered Berlin on July 17, 1945.

It was during this meeting that Truman learned of the successful U.S. test of the world's first atomic bomb. He issued a declaration warning Japan of "prompt and total destruction" unless it capitulated.

At Potsdam, Truman agreed to Polish occupation of a portion of defeated Germany.

"The spirit of Geneva"—meaning warm cooperation and friendship—was a term emerging from the July 1955 meeting in that Swiss city among President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin, Prime Minister Anthony Eden of Britain and Premier Edgar Faure of France.

But little actually was accomplished and a year later the Soviets militarily repressed an uprising in Hungary, bringing a return to icy relations between the two major powers.

Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev—who had accompanied Bulganin in 1955—met informally at the presidential retreat of Camp David, Md., in September 1959. Their talks were termed cordial and "the spirit of Camp David" was heralded as a step toward easing world tensions.

But a year later, in May 1960, plans for a Paris meeting between Khrushchev and Eisenhower broke up amid angry exchange when the Soviet leader demanded U.S. apologies for using planes to spy on the Soviet Union. An American U-2 spy plane had been shot down by the Soviets a month earlier and its pilot captured.

The last U.S.-Soviet summit meeting before today's was in June 1961 in Vienna between Khrushchev and President John F. Kennedy. It gave the newly elected Kennedy a chance to size up his new adversary but little concrete was accomplished.

A crisis over Berlin followed within months and a year late came the Cuban missile crisis—a summit confrontation instead of a summit conference.

Summit

Hughes Thursday afternoon about a site after the secret talks with the Soviets indicated Kosygin would approve a midway meeting.

Hughes, who had suggested several New Jersey locations Wednesday, and Johnson agreed on the college and the home of its president, Thomas Robinson, as the conference site.

Glassboro is named after its chief industry of former years — glass blowing. Today its population of 10,000 lives off the manufacture of bottle caps, plastics, cider and dresses — and the college.

The 5,000-student school has a sprawling, modern campus lined with apple trees and rose bushes.

When Kosygin arrived last Saturday for the U.N. General Assembly's emergency session on the Middle East, Johnson invited him to Washington or a place nearby like Camp David, Md.

Kosygin countered that he had come to attend the U.N. meeting, not visit the United States as such. He indicated Johnson could call on him in New York.

With the United States and Soviet Union at odds in the United Nations on the Middle East issue and on other matters like Vietnam, neither wanted to give in or appear to be too chummy with the other.

But the scales were finally tipped in the behind-scenes negotiations by the common interest of both superpower chiefs in demonstrating to the world, by at least a token meeting, that they were not about to set off a new cold war or worse.

White House sources indicated Kosygin's acceptance of Johnson's revised invitation to meet halfway between their headquarters was obtained by Secretary of State Dean Rusk during a half-hour call on the Soviet premier at noon Thursday.

Time was running out because Kosygin is expected to depart for Moscow Saturday.

The question of whether the two leaders should meet at all appeared to have been basically settled at a lengthy dinner discussion Wednesday night in New York between Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

At that meeting the two sides had their first opportunity during the U.N. session to review their differences privately — away from the spotlight attendant on their public speechmaking.

In the U.S. view, the Soviets prompted the U.N. session over U.S. objections in a propaganda drive to recoup Moscow's influence with the Arabs.

Kosygin spearheaded the move — opposed by the United States — to condemn Israel and demand withdrawal of its forces behind the prewar boundaries. He also linked the United States to what he termed Israeli aggression and denounced U.S. policies in Vietnam and elsewhere.

THE STORE closed Thursday night at 9 and the theft was discovered by an employe about 7 this morning.

An investigator indicated the job was done by "experts" who had "cased" the stores extensively.

The operatives also drank two quarts of chocolate milk while in the store.

Police theorize an accomplice may have remained in the store after it closed or perhaps had a key in attempting to determine the method of entry.

Store officials have begun an inventory to determine the exact extent of the loss.

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The Soviet Union appears in 1967 as the main customer for the Sao Paulo peanut crop. As a matter of fact, from a 1966 total of $330,000 worldwide peanut exports, the Soviet Union has already bought $140,000.

THE STORE closed Thursday night at 9 and the theft was discovered by an employe about 7 this morning.

An investigator indicated the job was done by "experts" who had "cased" the stores extensively.

The operatives also drank two quarts of chocolate milk while in the store.

Police theorize an accomplice may have remained in the store after it closed or perhaps had a key in attempting to determine the method of entry.

Store officials have begun an inventory to determine the exact extent of the loss.

The Halfway Point

Americans have always claimed to be uncomprehending about the oriental concern for "face"—that element of dignity, prestige so vital that its loss justifies death.

Yet a bit of face-saving is seen in the compromise arrangement of today's summit meeting between President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Kosygin, on an expressed trip to the United Nations in New York, could not really trot down to Washington at the beck and call of the U.S. President, and Mr. Johnson was not about to journey to Fun City — in an opposite direction from Texas — to be cast in the role of a humble squire hurrying to bow to the visiting Lord.

So an insignificant halfway point was chosen to which both could travel without seeming to have made any special effort, paid any particular tribute, for a casual and nonchalant meeting—on which world peace might well rest.

We hope this does not set a trend. For example, should Mayor Willshaw of East Liverpool and Mayor Daugherty of Wellsville want to discuss a common problem, we hope the talks don't have to be held at a mid-point on the Super Road.

Let us wish that Fire Chief VanDyne of East Liverpool and Chester Fire Chief Alton Johnson would not be forced by a new protocol to confer in the middle of the Ohio River about a conflagration.

Would East End's American Legion Post 374 meet Downtown Post 4 somewhere on the Hill Rd. to map Veterans Day plans? Should Midland School officials discuss next fall's football game with the Potters in a Smiths Ferry pipe shop?

Could talks between Ralph's Pizza Shop and the Doughnut Shop managers block traffic on Market St.?

No matter. The importance of any meeting is its result, and the hope is that insured peace will be the outcome of today's summit session.

Sickle Quicker Than The Hammer

A very special danger is looming in the Middle East crisis.

It is the danger of forgetting the sickle is quicker than the hammer when the Russians conduct international affairs.

While the Western World and much of the Middle East, itself, is busy with apprehensions about tension between an overwhelming majority of Arbas and a tiny minority of Jew, the Russians are taking advantage of a diversion to forge ahead with their primary interest.

That is to assert their power in the Mediterranean basin and in the Mediterranean Sea.

They are interested in Arabs only as a means to an end. They do not feel friendship for them, certainly no kinship. The Russians would as soon exploit the Jews for their special purpose in the Mediterranean area if the Jews were a majority and controlled the bulk of the land area.

There is no amity in these affairs.

This is the abject realism of hard-bitten international politics at its worst.

The Arabs, as hard-bitten as any people on earth, know this. They must know they are being used in a massive game of international power politics.

They must know why the United States has taken the place of Great Britain as the dominant naval influence in the Mediterranean — why this is essential to maintain a balance of power in one of the world's strategic areas.

The Kremlin is being hostile to Israel for expedient purposes. It has thrown in its lot with the Arabs only because of the territory they control.

But at the height of its frantic efforts to salvage something out of its losing bet on Arab-bloc success in the Israel-crushing project, the Kremlin must despair secretly of saving anything at all.

The Arabs are not good allies. They may turn out to be strategic liabilities, just as the Chinese turned out to be a liability for the Western Allies in World War II.

Despite billions of dollars poured into mainland China, Communism prevailed in Asia after all.

Millions of rubles poured into Arabian areas in behalf of Communism may have about as much effect.

In the end, confusion will prevail..

For Competitive Bidding

We hope Ohio's legislators won't let 200 or 300 county elected officials — commissioners and engineers — bamboozle them into scrapping House Bill 428 completely.

H.B. 428 says counties must give public notice and receive competitive bids on all purchases of $2,000 or over.

We agree the $2,000 figure might be too low. Perhaps the base figure should be $5,000. With that adjustment and one other we do not believe any county commissioner or county engineer could justifiably oppose H.B. 428.

The other adjustment would involve the requirement for all bidders to submit, along with their bids, certified checks to show good faith. We believe in 999 cases out of 1,000, bids will be solid and certified checks would be unnecessary.

For too many decades, county commissioners and engineers have not had to give public notice and receive bids.

In the state of Ohio, $500 million is spent annually by the counties for construction and purchase of supplies and equipment.

In the public interest, on the other hand, the state, itself, its cities, villages, townships, school districts and some quasi-public groups are required to advertise and receive bids.

What sets the counties apart from these other echelons of government?

Nothing!

We cannot accept as plausible all the arguments the commissioners and county engineers are raising in their objections to H.B. 428.

Certainly there will be occasions where it will work hardships. But in the long run, competitive bidding will prove to be in the public's best interest and in the best interests of the commissioners and county engineers.

Some county officials have gone to Columbus to oppose H.B. 428 per se. Naturally, if they have suggestions stemming from their experience as county officials that would improve H.B. 428, we believe their proposals should receive the utmost consideration by state legislators.

But unfortunately some commissioners and engineers are resorting to stern measures to keep H.B. 428 bottled up in the House Rules Committee and to defeat it if it comes out on the floor for a vote. They are threatening withdrawal of their political support of state legislators who vote for the measure. This we cannot accept.

Competitive bidding has proved in most instances to be a money-saving value. This, we believe, is in the public interest.

We would be dismayed to see a majority of our legislators intimidated by two or three hundred elected county officials on an issue so important to 10 million Ohioans.

We believe, too, that those voters would be strongly inclined to rebuke not only state legislators, but county officials, who fail to support H.B. 428 if it is amended to offer a modern and sound statute providing public notice and competitive bidding at the county level.

The Meeting

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

This will be remembered as the week that lacked grace.

All week the American and Soviet governments, like a couple of society matrons who didn't relish each other, couldn't make a move without their etiquette books.

And for most of the week the delegates to the United Nations went through a heavy-footed waltz, solemnly pronouncing the obvious while they pondered and debated Moscow's request to brand Israel an aggressor against the Arabs.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who came to New York for the U.N. meeting, and President Johnson had much to discuss, if they could get together, that affected the world, including Vietnam and the Middle East.

"We are in the midst of a great transition," Johnson said in his State of the Union message to Congress last January, "a transition from narrow nationalism to international partnership."

It would seem from all this that Johnson and Kosygin would have had no difficulty arranging to meet on this, their first closeup chance to do so. Johnson hasn't visited the Soviet Union as President and Kosygin hasn't been here before.

BUT ALL week there was jockeying. Prestige was involved. Should Kosygin journey from New York to see Johnson here? Or should Johnson, who is flying out to California to make a speech tonight, make the short trip to New York to see Kosygin?

Doing one or the other seems simple enough, but diplomats learn not to be simple and Johnson and Kosygin are always surrounded by diplomats.

Johnson asked Kosygin to visit him in Washington. Kosygin said he was on a visit to the United Nations rather than to the United States, but he left the door open for Johnson to visit him.

The President reportedly was unwilling to lend his prestige to this session of the United Nations since the U.S. government considers it a Soviet gimmick to regain favor with the Arabs who felt let down when Moscow failed to support them in the war, as it said it would. The Arabs accused the United States of aiding Isreel in the war.

Kosygin apparently didn't want to irritate them all over again by what might have been regarded as a pilgrimage to Johnson.

Just before Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived in the United States in 1959 for his Camp David meeting with President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Eisenhower went to Britain, France and West Germany to confer with the heads of government there and assure them this country was not going to make any separate deal with the Soviet Union.

If Johnson and Kosygin met, while nobody expected them to solve all problems or even any, they might have been able to start on a solution of some. If they did not meet they weren't helping that transition to international partnership which Johnson talked about in January.

But for a week the two governments dawdled. Every day the White House was vague about a meeting and in New York Kosygin was equally blank. As late as noon Thursday the White House said no arrangements had been made.

FINALLY, Thursday night came the announcement: The two men would meet each other halfway by having their session today in a New Jersey town called Glassboro. But that wasn't exactly halfway. By road Glassboro is only 105 miles from New York and 125 from Washington.

But, since Kosygin wins by only 20 miles in this settlement, and diplomats haven't yet figured out prestige by the mile, they may be arguing for a century over who made a concession to whom in this case.

Rail Union Hits Congress

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — During most of the heated moments of the great train crisis, President Johnson kept his cool. But some of his advisers did not. And with friendly advisers such as these the President needs no enemies. They cost the Democrats money and manpower in new year's national election when both will be hard to come by.

Victor Riesel

Throughout the railway battle the President has been his own general staff. Only those inside the White House sanctum really know how much he read, how carefully he marshaled his forces and tactics. He amazed even the not easily surprised official gadfly, Sen. Wayne Morse.

The Oregonian, easily the Senate's keenest labor expert, was in the dentist's chair at 8:40 a.m. the other morning. Suddenly the phone rang. It was not a patient. It was the President. Mr. Johnson was calling to thank him for all his help in pushing the White House strike legislation through the Senate.

And then the President quoted from an intricate speech Sen. Morse had delivered in the Senate the previous afternoon. Obviously Mr. Johnson had gotten to the Congressional Record sometime between 6:30 and 8:30 the following morning shortly after the printed proceedings are delivered, and had read the long discussion. He knew every detail.

SOME DAYS LATER the President, still cool but now desperately aware that he was dealing with unionists who had become the toughest bargainers in the land, called in his cabinet for this and other world matters. The rail lines were within hours of embargoing (freezing) freight in the yards. It was noontime, June 14.

He asked each of them to analyze the emergency from their Department's viewpoint. Later some of them went to the White House press office. To the amazement of some of the cabinet members present, the Secretary who decided to get toughest with the tough was Alan Stephenson Boyd, head of the new Transportation Dept. Labor doesn't like him. He doesn't enthuse over them. And unmindful, or unknowing, that the President and AFL-CIO leader George Meany had privately talked things out several days earlier, Boyd sounded off.

He lashed at the labor leader most influential in America's transportation system — Roy Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO Machinists, who, under his leadership, have struck everything from rare ball (gun) powder plants to jet warplane production and airlines.

"Siemiller typifies a group of arbitrary individuals," said Boyd, "extremely small in number who apparently have no concern for public welfare but only for their own selfish interests."

When Siemiller, who rarely loses his cool, learned of this, he nearly burst a stitch. He was home recuperating from minor surgery.

APPARENTLY BOYD soon heard from the White House. In a few hours his labor specialist, John Grimes, was taking soundings from the Machinists. They were not pleasant. And Boyd could not reach Siemiller. No private apologies were going to be accepted. So the next day the Secretary of Transportation — having learned the facts of life — said publicly:

"I regret those remarks. In the midst of a tense situation I made, in response to questions from reporters yesterday, some remarks concerning Mr. Siemiller, president of the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM). I do not deal in personalities and regret those remarks."

But that did not end it. The past is just prelude. There is no area of transportation on land, sea or sky, or outer space in which Boyd's department will not have to deal with Siemiller's union. The IAM is not only on the rails, but in airlines, autos, buses, trucking, etc. From now on he is their primary target.

HE HIMSELF WAS ILL-ADVISED. He should have known that the operational head of the Machinists' negotiating and strike committees is IAM vice-president Joe Ramsey. He must retire on July 23rd, his 65th birthday. Saturday night the union gave him his going away party. After July 23rd, Siemiller takes over the active direction of the Machinists' transportation division. And so the feud is on.

This is no minor matter on the political as well as the industrial front.

The Machinists have a Non-Partisan Political League. It is based on their 1900 lodges in almost as many cities reaching all the way from Seattle to Miami. It is influential. And it has a long Congressional purge list set for the next national election.

They are charging the Congress with strike-breaking. And they will try to smash the political careers of those around whose political necks they have hung what they call this "albatross."

Challenge Met

The United States Mint has withstood fire, earthquake and rebellion, but it almost crumbled before the voracious parking meter.

The demands of meters and vending machines helped create severe coin shortages in the 1960's. The situation was so bad in 1961 that a Connecticut bank was reduced to advertising in trade journals for any spare pennies that neighboring banks might part with.

The mint increased production and took other steps to meet the demand for small change.

The San Francisco branch mint, closed in 1955, was reopened after 10 years to coin nickels and pennies.

An 89-year-old coin press preserved in the Nevada State Museum in Carson City was shipped back to work at the Denver mint in 1964. Within a month, Old No. 5 was stamping out coins. The museum — housed in a former mint building — is patiently awaiting the return of its prize exhibit.

In the calendar year 1966, the main mint in Philadelphia and the two branches in Denver and San Francisco turned out a record 9.5 billion coins. The coin shortage was over.

Blunders

By David Lawrence

U Thant's Action Questioned

The usefulness of U Thant as secretary-general of the United Nations has come into question.

Without placing the matter before the U.N. General Assembly, he granted promptly last month President Nasser's request that the U.N. peace-keeping force be withdrawn from the armistice line on the Israeli border.

This led to the outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

Two pertinent documents have been made public.

One sets forth the views of the late Dag Hammarskjold, who, as secretary-general in 1956, arranged with President Nasser for the U.N. force to go on duty at the armistice line and stay there "until the task of the force was completed."

The other is the reply just made by U Thant to the Hammarskjold memorandum.

Mr. Hammarskjold knew there was a delicate point involved, and he left for future guidance a carefully written record and analysis of the subject.

U Thant now brushes this aside as an interpretation not binding upon him.

But there is a difference between an argument over the right of Egypt to ask for withdrawal of the U.N.'s peace-keeping force and the obligation of the secretary-general to submit the whole matter to the General Assembly for its consideration and decision.

The real issue is what Secretary-General Thant should have done about Egypt's request. He consulted on May 17 with the members of the advisory committee of the United Nations emergency force — representatives of India, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Brazil, Yugoslavia and Canada

SOME OF these envoys warned him he should take the matter up with the General Assembly.

Unfortunately, the secretary-general had already advised Egypt that if it formally requested withdrawal of the peace-keeping force this would be granted.

It was really not too late even then for a special meeting of the General Assembly to be called to deal with the problem, but U Thant took no such steps and said, "it is not within the competence of the General Assembly to act."

He felt that he, himself, had no choice but to grant the request from Nasser for the withdrawal. This he did on May 18.

The Hammarskjold memorandum of August 1957, on the other hand, argued these same points and emphasized that Egypt had made a "good faith" agreement not to withdraw its "consent" to the presence of the peace-keeping force without submitting the matter to the General Assembly. The late secretary-general wrote:

"My starting point in the consideration of this last-mentioned problem — the limitation of Egypt's sovereign right in the interest of political balance and stability in the United Nations Emergency Force operation — was the fact that Egypt had spontaneously endorsed the general assembly resolution of Nov. 5, 1956 (creating the force) and by endorsing that resolution had consented to the presence of the United Nations Emergency Force for certain tasks. They could thus not ask the U.N.E.F. to withdraw before the completion of the tasks without running up against their own acceptance of the resolution on the force and its tasks."

MR. HAMMARSKJOLD also mentions that he put squarely to President Nasser the necessity for an "agreement on withdrawal" with respect to the peace-keeping force, and told him that, "unless an agreement of this type was made," the secretary-general would recommend to the General Assembly the immediate withdrawal of the troops which had just been sent in to police the armistice.

Egypt's president was so anxious to have the pace-keeping force established that he acquiesced in the agreement.

The present secretary-general now says that while he was aware of the Hammarskjold memorandum, it was not an "official document."

But the points made cannot be erased. For the duty of the secretary-general is not to resolve such an important issue himself but to leave this to the United Nations, of which he is merely an administrative official.

The making of vital decisions is the function of the Security Council or of the General Assembly, as set forth in the U.S. Charter.

As it turned out, the one-man ruling gave encouragement to Egypt, which promptly mobilized its forces on the borders of Israel, and war ensued.

Certainly the U.N. should provide against a recurrence of such blunders.

Despite billions of dollars poured into mainland China, Communism prevailed in Asia after all.

Millions of rubles poured into Arabian areas in behalf of Communism may have about as much effect.

In the end, confusion will prevail..

For Competitive Bidding

We hope Ohio's legislators won't let 200 or 300 county elected officials — commissioners and engineers — bamboozle them into scrapping House Bill 428 completely.

H.B. 428 says counties must give public notice and receive competitive bids on all purchases of $2,000 or over.

We agree the $2,000 figure might be too low. Perhaps the base figure should be $5,000. With that adjustment and one other we do not believe any county commissioner or county engineer could justifiably oppose H.B. 428.

The other adjustment would involve the requirement for all bidders to submit, along with their bids, certified checks to show good faith. We believe in 999 cases out of 1,000, bids will be solid and certified checks would be unnecessary.

For too many decades, county commissioners and engineers have not had to give public notice and receive bids.

In the state of Ohio, $500 million is spent annually by the counties for construction and purchase of supplies and equipment.

In the public interest, on the other hand, the state, itself, its cities, villages, townships, school districts and some quasi-public groups are required to advertise and receive bids.

We cannot accept as plausible all the arguments the commissioners and county engineers are raising in their objections to H.B. 428.

Certainly there will be occasions where it will work hardships. But in the long run, competitive bidding will prove to be in the public's best interest and in the best interests of the commissioners and county engineers.

Some county officials have gone to Columbus to oppose H.B. 428 per se. Naturally, if they have suggestions stemming from their experience as county officials that would improve H.B. 428, we believe their proposals should receive the utmost consideration by state legislators.

But unfortunately some commissioners and engineers are resorting to stern measures to keep H.B. 428 bottled up in the House Rules Committee and to defeat it if it comes out on the floor for a vote. They are threatening withdrawal of their political support of state legislators who vote for the measure. This we cannot accept.

Competitive bidding has proved in most instances to be a money-saving value. This, we believe, is in the public interest.

We would be dismayed to see a majority of our legislators intimidated by two or three hundred elected county officials on an issue so important to 10 million Ohioans.

We believe, too, that those voters would be strongly inclined to rebuke not only state legislators, but county officials, who fail to support H.B. 428 if it is amended to offer a modern and sound statute providing public notice and competitive bidding at the county level.

Doing one or the other seems simple enough, but diplomats learn not to be simple and Johnson and Kosygin are always surrounded by diplomats.

Johnson asked Kosygin to visit him in Washington. Kosygin said he was on a visit to the United Nations rather than to the United States, but he left the door open for Johnson to visit him.

The President reportedly was unwilling to lend his prestige to this session of the United Nations since the U.S. government considers it a Soviet gimmick to regain favor with the Arabs who felt let down when Moscow failed to support them in the war, as it said it would. The Arabs accused the United States of aiding Israel in the war.

Kosygin apparently didn't want to irritate them all over again by what might have been regarded as a pilgrimage to Johnson.

Just before Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived in the United States in 1959 for his Camp David meeting with President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Eisenhower went to Britain, France and West Germany to confer with the heads of government there and assure them this country was not going to make any separate deal with the Soviet Union.

If Johnson and Kosygin met, while nobody expected them to solve all problems or even any, they might have been able to start on a solution of some. If they did not meet they weren't helping that transition to international partnership which Johnson talked about in January.

But for a week the two governments dawdled. Every day the White House was vague about a meeting and in New York Kosygin was equally blank. As late as noon Thursday the White House said no arrangements had been made.

FINALLY, Thursday night came the announcement: The two men would meet each other halfway by having their session today in a New Jersey town called Glassboro. But that wasn't exactly halfway. By road Glassboro is only 105 miles from New York and 125 from Washington.

But, since Kosygin wins by only 20 miles in this settlement, and diplomats haven't yet figured out prestige by the mile, they may be arguing for a century over who made a concession to whom in this case.

Rail Union Hits Congress

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — During most of the heated moments of the great train crisis, President Johnson kept his cool. But some of his advisers did not. And with friendly advisers such as these the President needs no enemies. They cost the Democrats money and manpower in new year's national election when both will be hard to come by.

Victor Riesel

Throughout the railway battle the President has been his own general staff. Only those inside the White House sanctum really know how much he read, how carefully he marshaled his forces and tactics. He amazed even the not easily surprised official gadfly, Sen. Wayne Morse.

The Oregonian, easily the Senate's keenest labor expert, was in the dentist's chair at 8:40 a.m. the other morning. Suddenly the phone rang. It was not a patient. It was the President. Mr. Johnson was calling to thank him for all his help in pushing the White House strike legislation through the Senate.

And then the President quoted from an intricate speech Sen. Morse had delivered in the Senate the previous afternoon. Obviously Mr. Johnson had gotten to the Congressional Record sometime between 6:30 and 8:30 the following morning shortly after the printed proceedings are delivered, and had read the long discussion. He knew every detail.

SOME DAYS LATER the President, still cool but now desperately aware that he was dealing with unionists who had become the toughest bargainers in the land, called in his cabinet for this and other world matters. The rail lines were within hours of embargoing (freezing) freight in the yards. It was noontime, June 14.

He asked each of them to analyze the emergency from their Department's viewpoint. Later some of them went to the White House press office. To the amazement of some of the cabinet members present, the Secretary who decided to get toughest with the tough was Alan Stephenson Boyd, head of the new Transportation Dept. Labor doesn't like him. He doesn't enthuse over them. And unmindful, or unknowing, that the President and AFL-CIO leader George Meany had privately talked things out several days earlier, Boyd sounded off.

He lashed at the labor leader most influential in America's transportation system — Roy Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO Machinists, who, under his leadership, have struck everything from rare ball (gun) powder plants to jet warplane production and airlines.

"Siemiller typifies a group of arbitrary individuals," said Boyd, "extremely small in number who apparently have no concern for public welfare but only for their own selfish interests."

When Siemiller, who rarely loses his cool, learned of this, he nearly burst a stitch. He was home recuperating from minor surgery.

APPARENTLY BOYD soon heard from the White House. In a few hours his labor specialist, John Grimes, was taking soundings from the Machinists. They were not pleasant. And Boyd could not reach Siemiller. No private apologies were going to be accepted. So the next day the Secretary of Transportation — having learned the facts of life — said publicly:

"I regret those remarks. In the midst of a tense situation I made, in response to questions from reporters yesterday, some remarks concerning Mr. Siemiller, president of the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM). I do not deal in personalities and regret those remarks."

But that did not end it. The past is just prelude. There is no area of transportation on land, sea or sky, or outer space in which Boyd's department will not have to deal with Siemiller's union. The IAM is not only on the rails, but in airlines, autos, buses, trucking, etc. From now on he is their primary target.

HE HIMSELF WAS ILL-ADVISED. He should have known that the operational head of the Machinists' negotiating and strike committees is IAM vice-president Joe Ramsey. He must retire on July 23rd, his 65th birthday. Saturday night the union gave him his going away party. After July 23rd, Siemiller takes over the active direction of the Machinists' transportation division. And so the feud is on.

This is no minor matter on the political as well as the industrial front.

The Machinists have a Non-Partisan Political League. It is based on their 1900 lodges in almost as many cities reaching all the way from Seattle to Miami. It is influential. And it has a long Congressional purge list set for the next national election.

They are charging the Congress with strike-breaking. And they will try to smash the political careers of those around whose political necks they have hung what they call this "albatross."

Challenge Met

The United States Mint has withstood fire, earthquake and rebellion, but it almost crumbled before the voracious parking meter.

The demands of meters and vending machines helped create severe coin shortages in the 1960's. The situation was so bad in 1961 that a Connecticut bank was reduced to advertising in trade journals for any spare pennies that neighboring banks might part with.

The mint increased production and took other steps to meet the demand for small change.

The San Francisco branch mint, closed in 1955, was reopened after 10 years to coin nickels and pennies.

An 89-year-old coin press preserved in the Nevada State Museum in Carson City was shipped back to work at the Denver mint in 1964. Within a month, Old No. 5 was stamping out coins. The museum — housed in a former mint building — is patiently awaiting the return of its prize exhibit.

In the calendar year 1966, the main mint in Philadelphia and the two branches in Denver and San Francisco turned out a record 9.5 billion coins. The coin shortage was over.

Blunders

By David Lawrence

U Thant's Action Questioned

The usefulness of U Thant as secretary-general of the United Nations has come into question.

Without placing the matter before the U.N. General Assembly, he granted promptly last month President Nasser's request that the U.N. peace-keeping force be withdrawn from the armistice line on the Israeli border.

This led to the outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

Two pertinent documents have been made public.

One sets forth the views of the late Dag Hammarskjold, who, as secretary-general in 1956, arranged with President Nasser for the U.N. force to go on duty at the armistice line and stay there "until the task of the force was completed."

The other is the reply just made by U Thant to the Hammarskjold memorandum.

Mr. Hammarskjold knew there was a delicate point involved, and he left for future guidance a carefully written record and analysis of the subject.

U Thant now brushes this aside as an interpretation not binding upon him.

But there is a difference between an argument over the right of Egypt to ask for withdrawal of the U.N.'s peace-keeping force and the obligation of the secretary-general to submit the whole matter to the General Assembly for its consideration and decision.

The real issue is what Secretary-General Thant should have done about Egypt's request. He consulted on May 17 with the members of the advisory committee of the United Nations emergency force — representatives of India, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Brazil, Yugoslavia and Canada

SOME OF these envoys warned him he should take the matter up with the General Assembly.

Unfortunately, the secretary-general had already advised Egypt that if it formally requested withdrawal of the peace-keeping force this would be granted.

It was really not too late even then for a special meeting of the General Assembly to be called to deal with the problem, but U Thant took no such steps and said, "it is not within the competence of the General Assembly to act."

He felt that he, himself, had no choice but to grant the request from Nasser for the withdrawal. This he did on May 18.

The Hammarskjold memorandum of August 1957, on the other hand, argued these same points and emphasized that Egypt had made a "good faith" agreement not to withdraw its "consent" to the presence of the peace-keeping force without submitting the matter to the General Assembly. The late secretary-general wrote:

"My starting point in the consideration of this last-mentioned problem — the limitation of Egypt's sovereign right in the interest of political balance and stability in the United Nations Emergency Force operation — was the fact that Egypt had spontaneously endorsed the general assembly resolution of Nov. 5, 1956 (creating the force) and by endorsing that resolution had consented to the presence of the United Nations Emergency Force for certain tasks. They could thus not ask the U.N.E.F. to withdraw before the completion of the tasks without running up against their own acceptance of the resolution on the force and its tasks."

MR. HAMMARSKJOLD also mentions that he put squarely to President Nasser the necessity for an "agreement on withdrawal" with respect to the peace-keeping force, and told him that, "unless an agreement of this type was made," the secretary-general would recommend to the General Assembly the immediate withdrawal of the troops which had just been sent in to police the armistice.

Egypt's president was so anxious to have the pace-keeping force established that he acquiesced in the agreement.

The present secretary-general now says that while he was aware of the Hammarskjold memorandum, it was not an "official document."

But the points made cannot be erased. For the duty of the secretary-general is not to resolve such an important issue himself but to leave this to the United Nations, of which he is merely an administrative official.

The making of vital decisions is the function of the Security Council or of the General Assembly, as set forth in the U.S. Charter.

As it turned out, the one-man ruling gave encouragement to Egypt, which promptly mobilized its forces on the borders of Israel, and war ensued.

Certainly the U.N. should provide against a recurrence of such blunders.

Dodd

rather than censure Dodd for his use of campaign and testimonial funds.

The Senate rejected Tower's amendment 87 to 9, thus again refusing to soften the bipartisan ethics committee's recommendation that Dodd be censured for conduct tending to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute.

Dodd withdrew as the roll was called, and his wife left the gallery seat she has occupied throughout the first eight days of debate.

The solemnity of the occasion was reflected in senators' faces as they voted. The crowded chamber—usually a hubbub of talk during votes—was hushed.

The expectation was that after voting on the amendment, the Senate quickly would move on to its final judgment in the case. But instead it bogged down in what Mansfield called legal mayhem.

The difficulty was that, under procedure agreed on last week, each of the two counts in the censure resolution is to be voted on separately.

Youth Given Lecture, Fine For Intoxication

An 18-year-old Lisbon area youth was given a stern lecture by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff and then fined $25 and costs today after he pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge.

Thomas F. Possage of Lisbon R.D. 2 was arrested Saturday at 3:02 a.m. at Lake Marwin by Deputy Sheriff Sid Boydston. When he failed to appear for a scheduled hearing Thursday, the judge ordered a bench warrant for his arrest.

Questioned by the judge, the boy named an East Liverpool tavern at which he said he obtained beer. The judge told Possage to stay away from the lake "unless you're sober and behave yourself." He said Possage's drinking had made him "a pest and a nuisance to other young people trying to have a good time."

The festival of Corpus Christi is observed on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday.

ANESTHETIST VS. ANESTHESIOLOGIST

Q. What's the difference between an anesthetist and an anesthesiologist?
A. An anesthesiologist is a medical doctor who specializes in the giving of anesthetics. Anesthetist is the term applied to a person (usually a nurse) who is not a doctor but who administers anesthetics.

DIAPERS

Q. Can babies' diapers be safely disinfected in an automatic washing machine without the use of special chemicals?
A. Almost all disease-producing germs can be killed by exposure to hot water for periods of at least 10 minutes. For this the average automatic washing machine is quite suitable. A non-foaming detergent should be used lest the diapers be exposed to warm suds rather than to hot water.

Bids Planned On Road Jobs

The State Highway Department said today it will open bids at Columbus July 25 on two projects designed to ease traffic congestion in Salem and permit better access to the Knox Centralized School.

The department said Knox Township Rd. 707 between Homeworth Rd. and Buck Rd. will be reconstructed to eliminate poor alignment and provide a wider roadway for traffic to and from the school. Construction costs for the $340,000 project will be shared by federal and county funds.

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY?
QUESTION: Is the first day of the week the Christian Sabbath?
ANSWER: The first day of the week is not referred to as a sabbath anywhere in the Bible. The literal meaning of the word "sabbath" is "a day of rest." In the law of Moses God said to rest on the seventh day (Ex. 20:10). He told Moses, "Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." "Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever." Ex. 31:13,16, 17).
It is clear from these passages that this covenant was only with "the children of Israel" and was to last only "throughout your (their) generations".
The Jewish Sabbath is the day we call Saturday. The law of Christ does not have in it a command to observe this or any other day as a sabbath.

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY?
QUESTION: Is the first day of the week the Christian Sabbath?
ANSWER: The first day of the week is not referred to as a sabbath anywhere in the Bible. The literal meaning of the word "sabbath" is "a day of rest." In the law of Moses God said to rest on the seventh day (Ex. 20:10). He told Moses, "Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." "Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever." Ex. 31:13,16, 17).
It is clear from these passages that this covenant was only with "the children of Israel" and was to last only "throughout your (their) generations".
The Jewish Sabbath is the day we call Saturday. The law of Christ does not have in it a command to observe this or any other day as a sabbath.

City Campaign Launched By District's MS Group

A citywide campaign for the Multiple Sclerosis "Hope Chest" of the Tru-Mah-Col Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society began today and will continue through June 30, Marian Perkins, campaign chairman, said.

Perkins, of 942 Myler Park, said the drive will be conducted through a house - to - house canvass. Proceeds will be used to help the nearly 250 MS victims in the tri-county area, most of whom are between the ages of 20 and 40.

He said, "We must expand our effort in the fight against this disease; I ask every resident in East Liverpool to support the campaign giving more than ever before."

Perkins has held the position for five years.

A telephone recruitment for captains and marchers in the residential canvass is under way, he said. He is being assisted by Mrs. Janet Perkins, Mrs. Christina Green and Miss Marie Wolf.

Perkins said the contributions will be used for rehabilitation equipment and physical therapy for patients. Donations are divided so that 60 per cent of the money will be used in the local office for tri-county patients and 40 per cent will be used for a national research program exploring the cause seeking cure for multiple sclerosis.

"Each new volunteer means more hope to each MS patient," Perkins concluded.

Hayes Fires New Charge At Medical Association

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The American Medical Association was rebuked Thursday in an attempt to heal its long-standing rift with osteopathic physicians.

The osteopaths claimed the AMA move was a political attempt to control all of American medicine.

Dr. John W. Hayes, president of the American Osteopathic Association, declared in a statement from his home in East Liverpool, Ohio:

"The AMA's concern over the 'osteopathic problem' has nothing to do with osteopathic education. We know it and the AMA knows it.

"This is a political problem to the AMA based on the fact that 13,000 osteopathic physicians, not under AMA control, are providing quality health care to some 20 million Americans, attaining growing public recognition and increased federal support."

The AMA has a membership of 215,000 of the nation's more than 300,000 physicians.

The House of Delegates, the AMA's policy making body, adopted a report calling for negotiations to convert schools of osteopathy to schools of medicine and to permit qualified osteopathic students to transfer to medical schools.

The 242 delegates adopted the report — after heated debate — apparently unaware of the statement of Dr. Hayes.

Afterwards, a spokesman for the AMA said it would have no official comment on Dr. Hayes' statement.

Many physicians have contended that osteopathic doctors are "cultists," practicing what they term "bone-manipulating."

The AMA report said, however, there is "much evidence that the cultist form of osteopathy is restricted to a minority of osteopathic physicians who are in the older age group." It added that cultism is disappearing.

The AMA claimed the major problem is not so much cultism as it is that osteopathic education represents a "standard less than that required of accredited medical schools."

Man Charged In Gun Death Of Youth, 18

Charges of manslaughter and assault with intent to kill were filed Thursday against a 69-year-old Beaver County man in the slaying of a Pittsburgh area youth and the wounding of another in Raccoon Township June 16.

Robert George MacChesney of 3828 Greengarden Rd., south of Monaca, was arraigned yesterday following his arrest at his home by Beaver County Chief Detective John Krzton and Pennsylvania State Trooper James Diffenbacher.

MacChesney was charged with voluntary manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter in the death of William Poskin, 18, of Oakdale, who was shot in the early-morning accident at MacChesney's farm along McVess Rd.

The man also was charged with assault with intent to kill in the wounding of John Josey, 16, of Oakdale, who was struck in the eye by a bullet.

MacChesney, arraigned before Justice of the Peace Milton Richeal of West Mayfield, was released on $5,000 property bond for a hearing at a later date.

MacChesney, police reports indicated, confronted the two youths along with two others and two girls from the Pittsburgh area after they had visited the old farm house at the site.

Neighbors said MacChesney had been concerned about vandalism at the old structure, and had been sleeping nearby in an effort to curb further destruction.

The group of young people said they had been fishing at the nearby Ambridge Reservoir.

Sentence Suspended In Non-Support Case

Edward Ryan of 215 W. 7th St. was given a suspended 30 - day County Jail term today by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff on a charge of failure to support two minor children.

The affidavit was signed by Ryan's wife, Mrs. Peggy Ryan of 327½ W. 9th St. Questioned by the judge, Ryan said he has not worked since he was released from military service in March.

The judge ordered Ryan to obtain work and to return to court July 21 to report on compliance with the order.

"You don't have to get a full-time job; there's plenty of work for a willing man," the judge told Ryan. "Go door-to-door — you can cut grass or help with cleaning!"

Shady Lane Farm in Ocala, Fla., is operated by Mrs. Douglas F. Stewart.

Promotion Received By Ex-Chester Man

Kenneth W. Simcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simcox of Chester, has been promoted to vice principal of South High School at Hagerstown, Md. The school has an enrollment of 1,800.

In his new position he will serve as principal of the 9th and 10th grade "Little School," which has approximately 900 students.

Simcox holds a master's degree from West Virginia University. He taught mathematics at Weirton High School for four years. The last six years he has been guidance director in South Hagerstown High School. He is married to the former Rosemary Altmeyer of Wheeling. They have a son and daughter.

Defendant Pays Costs In Traffic Court Case

Pamela Van Dyke, 18, of Wellsville R. D. 1 was ordered to pay $7.50 court costs Thursday by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff after she pleaded guilty to charges of improper backing of an auto that led to injury of a Midland man in East Liverpool Wednesday night.

The girl's auto allegedly struck Nick Tarbuk, 42, of 1280 Beaver Ave., injuring his left leg, in a mishap on Market St. near W. 6th St.

Questioned by the judge, the girl said she spent the night in jail because she was unable to post a $32.50 appearance bond. The judge then fined her $25 and costs, but suspended the fine because of her detention in jail.

Afterwards, a spokesman for the AMA said it would have no official comment on Dr. Hayes' statement.

Many physicians have contended that osteopathic doctors are "cultists," practicing what they term "bone-manipulating."

The AMA report said, however, there is "much evidence that the cultist form of osteopathy is restricted to a minority of osteopathic physicians who are in the older age group." It added that cultism is disappearing.

The AMA claimed the major problem is not so much cultism as it is that osteopathic education represents a "standard less than that required of accredited medical schools."

Promotion Received By Ex-Chester Man

Kenneth W. Simcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simcox of Chester, has been promoted to vice principal of South High School at Hagerstown, Md. The school has an enrollment of 1,800.

In his new position he will serve as principal of the 9th and 10th grade "Little School," which has approximately 900 students.

Simcox holds a master's degree from West Virginia University. He taught mathematics at Weirton High School for four years. The last six years he has been guidance director in South Hagerstown High School. He is married to the former Rosemary Altmeyer of Wheeling. They have a son and daughter.

Defendant Pays Costs In Traffic Court Case

Pamela Van Dyke, 18, of Wellsville R. D. 1 was ordered to pay $7.50 court costs Thursday by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff after she pleaded guilty to charges of improper backing of an auto that led to injury of a Midland man in East Liverpool Wednesday night.

The girl's auto allegedly struck Nick Tarbuk, 42, of 1280 Beaver Ave., injuring his left leg, in a mishap on Market St. near W. 6th St.

Questioned by the judge, the girl said she spent the night in jail because she was unable to post a $32.50 appearance bond. The judge then fined her $25 and costs, but suspended the fine because of her detention in jail.

Brazil derives both its culture and its language from Portugal.

Karate With Rulers Bring Lots Of Tears

AUCKLAND (AP) — Following a trail of splintered rulers and pencils, the headmasters of two Invercargill schools found a startling cause. Their tough little 5 and 6-year-old tots were practicing karate, the Japanese form of self - defense.

The children's interest had been sparked by a television program. After practicing karate chops on their pencils and rulers, some had started on their schoolmates. Although they did not cause any injuries, there were plenty of tears.

Rodak To Be Marshal For Parade At Newell

Hancock County Sheriff Joe Rodak has been named marshal for the Newell Volunteer Fire Department parade June 30 held in conjunction with the annual carnival.

Officials of the parade today said judges will include Fire Chiefs Alton Johnson of Chester, Alfred Van Dyne of East Liverpool and Gail Ash of Weirton.

Trophies will be presented winners in various categories.

Chief Earl Flesch said the kiddies' parade June 26 will form about 7 p.m. at 4th and Washington Sts. and move to Clark Field for judging.

Highlighting the parade will be the crowning of Miss Juniorette from among three contestants — Cindy Mercer, Rebecca Day and Mary Connor. Last year's queen, Beverly Jividen, will take part in the ceremonies.

Flesch said 40 fire units are scheduled to participate, along with area marching groups, bands and civic organizations.

The Oak Glen, Beaver Local, Wellsville and Weirton High School bands will perform.

Marching groups include two units of the Baronettes from Steubenville, the Cinettes of Weirton, the Annettes of Midland, and the Golden Triangle Baton and Drum Corps of Pittsburgh.

The parade will get under way at 7, with Miss Juniorette being crowned a half-hour earlier, Flesch said. He has requested all units participating first report to the fire station. The parade will form at 6th and Grant Sts., move to 2nd St., then to Washington St. and to the judges' stand at Clark Field, where the carnival will be held.

Ride tickets will be sold by the firemen until noon Monday.

Jaycees Appoint Committee Heads

Twenty-four committee chairmen for the coming year were approved during a special meeting of the Jaycee Board of Directors Thursday night at the home of President Frank Moss of 5th Ave., LaCroft.

Vincent Laneve will be in charge of public relations and Joe Smith will direct publication of the Jaycee Comment.

Roger Babb was appointed chairman of the Spoke and orientation committee and Robert Dusock chairman of the golf picnic.

The planned program for the year was approved. A certified letter will be sent members more than six months behind in their dues and they will be dropped from the active rolls if dues are not paid by the July 10 board meeting.

Dale Kidd was commended for his work on the innaugural ball. Charles Lang reported the all-state meeting will be July 22-23 at Lima.

Babb announced the June membership meeting will be Monday at 6 p. m. at Thompson Park.

Most Police, Firemen Still Out At Salem

SALEM — Most of Salem's 36 police and firemen continued to call in sick or were unavailable for work today, even though Mayor Dean Cranmer said he thought they would return to duty.

Cranmer, who has two sons on the Fire Department, said after a meeting with City Council Thursday night, "They asked me not to disclose what went on."

Representatives of police and firemen offered to meet with Councilmen, but were told they would have to return to work first.

Asked what the primary stumbling block was in wage talks, Cranmer said, "I'm a Democrat mayor with six Republican councilmen, and they're trying to put me on the spot.

"They're building $648,000 worth of streets and they won't pay the police and firemen anything."

The Salem Police and Firemen's Association is asking an across-the-board monthly pay increase of $50. Council granted them a pay increase of $16 a month Jan. 1.

Agents Eye Plan For Re-Training Cited Motorists

A program for re-training drivers who have been cited into courts is being studied by a group of independent insurance agents in the county for possible suggestion to jurists.

At a recent dinner meeting of the agents, Judge J. R. Ostrowski, president of the Greater Cleveland Municipal Judges Association, and Gordon Wagner, operator of a driver school, outlined the plan which is in effect in parts of Cuyahoga County.

Ryan Snyder and Wayne Bauer of Columbiana and County Judge Barry Dickson previously had visited Cleveland to see the plan in operation.

Judge Ostrowski said movies such as "Signal 30" provide a shock to drivers, but fail to correct attitudes. He refers all three-time offenders to a driver improvement school for voluntary enrollment and reduces the fine and costs if the driver completes the course of two 2½-hour sessions.

Intensive Diplomatic Maneuver

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) The decision reached by President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to meet for at least a little while ended one of the most intensive diplomatic tennis games the worried world has seen in several years.

For a week the President and the Soviet leader have batted back and forth the question of when and where they should talk — and whether they should talk at all.

The issue overshadowed the special session of the U.N. General Assembly on the Middle East crisis which brought Kosygin across the Atlantic.

U.S. officials privately agree that if the negotiations had failed to produce a conference, there would have been a bad worldwide reaction except in Communist China and the Arab states.

The Chinese Communists, who frequently charge the Soviet Union with plotting with the United States, and the Arabs, who rely heavily on Soviet opposition to the United States in the Middle East, are expected to react to the Johnson-Kosygin summit with varying degrees of indignation and suspicion. This is believed to have been the major reason underlying Kosygin's refusal to consider Washington as a meeting place; he wanted to minimize his Chinese and Arab problems.

The diplomatic exchange began last weekend when Johnson invited Kosygin, who arrived Saturday, to visit him in Washington during his stay in the United States. The President offered the White House, Camp David, Md., or some nearby mountain resort in Virginia or West Virginia as a site.

Kosygin replied, according to U.S. officials, that he had come to attend the U.N. session rather than to visit the United States and he was therefore unable to accept the invitation. Johnson was reported to regret the rejection, but he considered his invitation still open.

This exchange was handled by the U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Lewellyn Thompson, who happened to be in Washington, and the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin.

The nature of the President's invitation and Kosygin's reply became known publicly last Monday night. The disclosure is reported to have caused a stir among Kosygin's 66-man delegation to the U.N. General Assembly session, and on Tuesday Thompson and Dobrynin were in touch again. The question then arose whether the Soviet premier was opposed to any meeting with the President at this time or whether the problem was of place.

Subsequent exchanges through Dobrynin and Thompson gave the Americans the impression that the site was in Kosygin's view a serious problem. A lesser difficulty was finding a time agreeable to both sides, though the Americans had assumed, it is said, that if there was to be a summit it would be near the end of Kosygin's visit.

One American reservation about the wisdom of a meeting seems to have been removed Monday when Kosygin made his U.N. speech criticizing Israel and defending the Arab cause.

The President and his advisers strongly objected to Kosygin's charge that the United States had encouraged Israel in making war on the Arabs. But they noted that he did not attack Johnson personally. His denunciations of the United States as an imperialist power were considered routine, as Soviet speeches go.

Another reservation on which Johnson was determined from the outset was that he would not come to New York to see Kosygin. The United States had opposed the General Assembly session which was called at the Soviets' demand. The President did not want to build it up with his presence.

Since traditional practice has been for foreign officials attending U.N. meetings to visit him in Washington if they wished to do so, Johnson also disliked the idea of reversing protocol and calling on the Soviet leader.

On Tuesday U.S. officials thought the effort to solve the site problem might fail, but by Wednesday U.S. officials were taking the line that "arrangements have not yet been made," implying a belief that eventually they probably would be.

Wednesday night Secretary of State Dean Rusk entertained Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at dinner in his suite on the 35th floor of the Waldorf Towers. For more than three hours they talked over the issues which Kosygin and Johnson might discuss — the Middle East, the war in Vietnam, a treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, limitation of the antiballistic missile race, the U.S.-Soviet consular convention which the Soviet Union has yet to ratify.

They also talked briefly about summit arrangements but did not make any final decision, which could only be made by Johnson and Kosygin anyway. Gromyko said later the discussion was businesslike. U.S. officials agreed.

Before the final agreement was reached Thursday on Glassboro, N.J., as a site well away from both Washington and New York, Thompson and Dobrynin had a final hectic round of exchanges — their busiest morning of a busy and uncertain week.

Their work was topped off at a noon meeting which Rusk held with Kosygin at the Manhattan headquarters of the Soviet-U.N. delegation. The two men talked for half an hour. When they were through only details of final planning, security arrangements, and the like remained to be cleaned up.

In the final outcome, Kosygin avoided being photographed with the President at the White House, that center of Western "imperialist" power in the Communist lexicon. Johnson avoided being seen anywhere near the U.N. special session on the Middle East. And both men avoided the criticism that failure to meet could have brought down on their heads.

"What is unusual about this diplomatic tennis we've been playing all week," one U.S. official said, "is that it has all been done so much in public. Usually arrangements like this are worked out through embassies before a visitor even gets to this country. But Kosygin's trip was decided on so quickly there was no time for that."

fered as an alternative to the administration bill. The merchants' lobby has waged an all-out campaign against the administration bill because of a provision for a 1 per cent tax on gross receipts.

Hammond said the alternate bill will propose a flat 2 per cent sales tax to be extended to all sales and services except food, "lowering the rate but broadening the base." He estimated the tax would yield $600 million a year.

In other developments as the legislature ended its 24th work week:

The Senate voted 29-0 to establish a firemen's training academy to be operated by the state fire marshal.

The Senate Finance Committee remained deadlocked over a provision to raise payments of the Aid to Dependent Children program and members put off a showdown until Monday. They are at odds over an amendment to the budget bill to raise payments from 78 per cent of recommended standards to slightly more than 90 per cent. Welfare and church groups have been insisting on 100 per cent.

Seven new bills were introduced in the two chambers. They ranged from the administration's $276 million capital improvements bill to a measure by Rep. William H. Mussey R-12 Clermont making it legal to shoot crop-damaging blackbirds on Sunday.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded enemy troop concentrations and bunkers. They struck Thursday night nine miles northwest of Khe Sanh, just below the demilitarized zone, and today in Tay Ninh Province northwest of Saigon, facing the Cambodian border.

In the ground war, U.S. headquarters said Marines have completed Operation Arizona, in which they killed 80 Communist soldiers in a nine-day sweep 20 miles southwest of Da Nang. Marines of the 5th and 7th Regiments had eight killed and 65 wounded in the operation, the command said.

Two U.S. Army helicopters were shot down in Long An Province just south of Saigon, but both were recovered and there were no casualties.

ity as presiding officer of the assembly.

The assembly has before it two resolutions, that of the Soviet Union and one submitted by the United States.

The U.S. proposal, which was given little chance of approval in its present form, urges negotiations between the Arabs and Israel and speaks of withdrawal of Israeli troops from conquered Arab territory only in the context of broader Middle East issues.

The Soviet resolution calls for a condemnation of Israel for "aggression," withdrawal of its troops from conquered territory asd payment of reparations for damage inflicted by Israeli forces.

One Asian diplomat said that if the Soviet proposal were put to a vote now, its provisions for withdrawal and reparations would probably be approved. But he said it was uncertain the provision for condemnation would be accepted.

Communist sources said the Soviets were ready to listen to suggestions to win wider support for their resolution.

Private exchanges were going on among diplomats of the various geographical groups at the U.N. and among the top-level government officials, premiers and foreign ministers attending the emergency assembly session.

The Latin-American group, one of those working most actively for a compromise resolution, heard Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban in a private session Thursday pledge Israel's readiness to assure that the holy places of Jerusalem were "properly safeguarded."

But sources at the meeting said Eban stressed his government's intention to retain possession of the Jordanian sector of the city, which Israeli troops captured in the war.

"International interest in Jerusalem relates solely to the holy places and not to the city itself, which must retain its present unity," Eban said.

The Latin-American delegates were scheduled to hear the Arab side today.

Reports have circulated that the Russians are surveying the ruins of Egypt's Soviet-supplied war machine and making plans to rebuild it.

An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv labeled "completely untrue" Jordanian reports that thousands of Palestinian Arab refugees were being herded across the Jordan River by Israeli soldiers driving them from the Israeli-occupied west bank.

The spokesman said reports reaching him said only a trickle of refugees crossed the Allenby Bridge Thursday. But AP Correspondent George Boultwood reported from the bridge that 10,000 men, women and children made the crossing in the biggest one-day refugee movement since the cease-fire.

Jack McDonald of Nashville, Tenn., considered most likely to be elected national Young Republicans chairman today, said that if he is chosen to head the organization he will cooperate closely with Bliss. This cooperation seemed likely to leave in the hands of the new chairman the issue of whether the national organization might cut off the $21,000 budgeted by the national committee for the Young Republicans during the next year.

"I don't interpret the action of the convention in voting on constitutional amendment as being any sort of slap at Mr. Bliss," McDonald said.

"It's absolutely necessary that the Young Republicans and the senior party organization work together. We both want winners."

Jack Jordan, Pennsylvania's senior party chairman, said, however, the convention action was a slap at Bliss and the moderates who are supporting Michigan Gov. George Romney for the Republican presidential nomination.

FCC Again Okays ABC, ITT Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has for the second time approved the merger of American Broadcasting Companies Inc. into International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. — the biggest merger in broadcasting history.

But the Justice Department has not decided yet whether to take its fight against the consolidation into court.

FCC Commissioners Robert E. Lee, Lee Loevinger, James J. Wadsworth and Chairman Rosel H. Hyde formed the majority in the same 4-3 lineup that prevailed when the FCC first approved the $2.8-billion merger Dec. 21.

The majority said IT&T's strong financial backing would enable ABC to better compete with the other two major networks — National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System.

The network says it will expand its color programming and build new studios as part of a $141-million program.

The new FCC decision was accompanied by a strongly worded 138-page minority opinion that accused some IT&T and ABC officials and witnesses of both companies of lack of candor and misrepresentations during their testimony at recent FCC hearings on the merger.

The minority also charged IT&T and ABC officials with "overbearing and presumptuous conduct toward the press" during the hearing and with trying "to distort and pervert the media in their reporting of these proceedings."

The commission earlier this spring agreed to the rehearing on the merger to give the Justice Deparmtent a further chance to present its opposition.

The two companies now have agreed to hold off completion of their merger for 30 days to give the department time to decide whether it will go to court to block it.

The FCC has jurisdiction in the case because ABC wishes to transfer ownership of its 17 radio and television stations to IT&T.

The Justice Department claimed the merger would harm the integrity of ABC's network news operation, and that by taking over ABC, IT&T would eliminate itself as a possible source of a fourth national television network.

Parolee, 42, Held In Iowa For Slaying 3

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Police searched today into the background of a man who they said apparently came to Iowa from Texas to rob a bank and wound up killing three persons who innocently got in his way while he was "casing" the countryside.

Held on a murder charge was a bald, 42-year-old man identified as Hubert B. McClelland of Beaumont, Tex., a parolee with a criminal record for nearly 20 years.

Authorities described as "senseless" the fatal shooting Wednesday night of a housewife and two farmers and the abduction of two children riding with the woman.

Mrs. Charles Schwab, 41, of Belle Plaine, was shot after her car was forced off a gravel road near Elberon and the gunman drove off with the children who had been riding with her.

Less than a mile down the road the man ran into a ditch. He shot Leland Skoog, 55, a dairy farmer, and Skoog's son, Garith, 24, when they went to offer aid.

Mrs. Schwab's daughter, Christine, 11, and Christine's cousin, Julie Braksiek, 11, were in the trunk of the Skoog car when he surrendered meekly to police on the outskirts of Cedar Rapids, and asked for a cigarette. The children were unharmed.

Authorities said they did not know until hours later that the man they had in custody was McClelland, who had given the name of Joseph Robert Carter.

Hearing Planned In Area Shooting

MONACA — Arraignment is scheduled Saturday for Joseph Pace, 55, of Monaca charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the wounding of Robert Toth, 28, Wednesday night.

Toth remains in "critical" condition at Mercy Hospital at Pittsburgh with bullet wounds of the head.

Police said Toth went to the home of his estranged wife — daughter of Pace — and a quarrel developed. Pace obtained a pistol from the kitchen, and the shooting followed.

Intensive Diplomatic Maneuver

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) The decision reached by President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to meet for at least a little while ended one of the most intensive diplomatic tennis games the worried world has seen in several years.

For a week the President and the Soviet leader have batted back and forth the question of when and where they should talk — and whether they should talk at all.

The issue overshadowed the special session of the U.N. General Assembly on the Middle East crisis which brought Kosygin across the Atlantic.

U.S. officials privately agree that if the negotiations had failed to produce a conference, there would have been a bad worldwide reaction except in Communist China and the Arab states.

The Chinese Communists, who frequently charge the Soviet Union with plotting with the United States, and the Arabs, who rely heavily on Soviet opposition to the United States in the Middle East, are expected to react to the Johnson-Kosygin summit with varying degrees of indignation and suspicion. This is believed to have been the major reason underlying Kosygin's refusal to consider Washington as a meeting place; he wanted to minimize his Chinese and Arab problems.

The diplomatic exchange began last weekend when Johnson invited Kosygin, who arrived Saturday, to visit him in Washington during his stay in the United States. The President offered the White House, Camp David, Md., or some nearby mountain resort in Virginia or West Virginia as a site.

Kosygin replied, according to U.S. officials, that he had come to attend the U.N. session rather than to visit the United States and he was therefore unable to accept the invitation. Johnson was reported to regret the rejection, but he considered his invitation still open.

This exchange was handled by the U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Lewellyn Thompson, who happened to be in Washington, and the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin.

The nature of the President's invitation and Kosygin's reply became known publicly last Monday night. The disclosure is reported to have caused a stir among Kosygin's 66-man delegation to the U.N. General Assembly session, and on Tuesday Thompson and Dobrynin were in touch again. The question then arose whether the Soviet premier was opposed to any meeting with the President at this time or whether the problem was of place.

Subsequent exchanges through Dobrynin and Thompson gave the Americans the impression that the site was in Kosygin's view a serious problem. A lesser difficulty was finding a time agreeable to both sides, though the Americans had assumed, it is said, that if there was to be a summit it would be near the end of Kosygin's visit.

One American reservation about the wisdom of a meeting seems to have been removed Monday when Kosygin made his U.N. speech criticizing Israel and defending the Arab cause.

The President and his advisers strongly objected to Kosygin's charge that the United States had encouraged Israel in making war on the Arabs. But they noted that he did not attack Johnson personally. His denunciations of the United States as an imperialist power were considered routine, as Soviet speeches go.

Another reservation on which Johnson was determined from the outset was that he would not come to New York to see Kosygin. The United States had opposed the General Assembly session which was called at the Soviets' demand. The President did not want to build it up with his presence.

Since traditional practice has been for foreign officials attending U.N. meetings to visit him in Washington if they wished to do so, Johnson also disliked the idea of reversing protocol and calling on the Soviet leader.

On Tuesday U.S. officials thought the effort to solve the site problem might fail, but by Wednesday U.S. officials were taking the line that "arrangements have not yet been made," implying a belief that eventually they probably would be.

Wednesday night Secretary of State Dean Rusk entertained Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at dinner in his suite on the 35th floor of the Waldorf Towers. For more than three hours they talked over the issues which Kosygin and Johnson might discuss — the Middle East, the war in Vietnam, a treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, limitation of the antiballistic missile race, the U.S.-Soviet consular convention which the Soviet Union has yet to ratify.

They also talked briefly about summit arrangements but did not make any final decision, which could only be made by Johnson and Kosygin anyway. Gromyko said later the discussion was businesslike. U.S. officials agreed.

Before the final agreement was reached Thursday on Glassboro, N.J., as a site well away from both Washington and New York, Thompson and Dobrynin had a final hectic round of exchanges — their busiest morning of a busy and uncertain week.

Their work was topped off at a noon meeting which Rusk held with Kosygin at the Manhattan headquarters of the Soviet-U.N. delegation. The two men talked for half an hour. When they were through only details of final planning, security arrangements, and the like remained to be cleaned up.

In the final outcome, Kosygin avoided being photographed with the President at the White House, that center of Western "imperialist" power in the Communist lexicon. Johnson avoided being seen anywhere near the U.N. special session on the Middle East. And both men avoided the criticism that failure to meet could have brought down on their heads.

"What is unusual about this diplomatic tennis we've been playing all week," one U.S. official said, "is that it has all been done so much in public. Usually arrangements like this are worked out through embassies before a visitor even gets to this country. But Kosygin's trip was decided on so quickly there was no time for that."

fered as an alternative to the administration bill. The merchants' lobby has waged an all-out campaign against the administration bill because of a provision for a 1 per cent tax on gross receipts.

Hammond said the alternate bill will propose a flat 2 per cent sales tax to be extended to all sales and services except food, "lowering the rate but broadening the base." He estimated the tax would yield $600 million a year.

In other developments as the legislature ended its 24th work week:

The Senate voted 29-0 to establish a firemen's training academy to be operated by the state fire marshal.

The Senate Finance Committee remained deadlocked over a provision to raise payments of the Aid to Dependent Children program and members put off a showdown until Monday. They are at odds over an amendment to the budget bill to raise payments from 78 per cent of recommended standards to slightly more than 90 per cent. Welfare and church groups have been insisting on 100 per cent.

Seven new bills were introduced in the two chambers. They ranged from the administration's $276 million capital improvements bill to a measure by Rep. William H. Mussey R-12 Clermont making it legal to shoot crop-damaging blackbirds on Sunday.

In the ground war, U.S. headquarters said Marines have completed Operation Arizona, in which they killed 80 Communist soldiers in a nine- day sweep 20 miles southwest of Da Nang. Marines of the 5th and 7th Regiments had eight killed and 65 wounded in the operation, the command said.

ity as presiding officer of the assembly.

The assembly has before it two resolutions, that of the Soviet Union and one submitted by the United States.

The U.S. proposal, which was given little chance of approval in its present form, urges negotiations between the Arabs and Israel and speaks of withdrawal of Israeli troops from conquered Arab territory only in the context of broader Middle East issues.

The Soviet resolution calls for a condemnation of Israel for "aggression," withdrawal of its troops from conquered territory asd payment of reparations for damage inflicted by Israeli forces.

One Asian diplomat said that if the Soviet proposal were put to a vote now, its provisions for withdrawal and reparations would probably be approved. But he said it was uncertain the provision for condemnation would be accepted.

Communist sources said the Soviets were ready to listen to suggestions to win wider support for their resolution.

Private exchanges were going on among diplomats of the various geographical groups at the U.N. and among the top-level government officials, premiers and foreign ministers attending the emergency assembly session.

The Latin-American group, one of those working most actively for a compromise resolution, heard Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban in a private session Thursday pledge Israel's readiness to assure that the holy places of Jerusalem were "properly safeguarded."

But sources at the meeting said Eban stressed his government's intention to retain possession of the Jordanian sector of the city, which Israeli troops captured in the war.

"International interest in Jerusalem relates solely to the holy places and not to the city itself, which must retain its present unity," Eban said.

The Latin-American delegates were scheduled to hear the Arab side today.

Reports have circulated that the Russians are surveying the ruins of Egypt's Soviet-supplied war machine and making plans to rebuild it.

An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv labeled "completely untrue" Jordanian reports that thousands of Palestinian Arab refugees were being herded across the Jordan River by Israeli soldiers driving them from the Israeli-occupied west bank.

The spokesman said reports reaching him said only a trickle of refugees crossed the Allenby Bridge Thursday. But AP Correspondent George Boultwood reported from the bridge that 10,000 men, women and children made the crossing in the biggest one-day refugee movement since the cease-fire.

Tom Van Sickle of Kansas prevented a roll-call vote.

Jack McDonald of Nashville, Tenn., considered most likely to be elected national Young Republicans chairman today, said that if he is chosen to head the organization he will cooperate closely with Bliss. This cooperation seemed likely to leave in the hands of the new chairman the issue of whether the national organization might cut off the $21,000 budgeted by the national committee for the Young Republicans during the next year.

"I don't interpret the action of the convention in voting on constitutional amendment as being any sort of slap at Mr. Bliss," McDonald said.

"It's absolutely necessary that the Young Republicans and the senior party organization work together. We both want winners."

Jack Jordan, Pennsylvania's senior party chairman, said, however, the convention action was a slap at Bliss and the moderates who are supporting Michigan Gov. George Romney for the Republican presidential nomination.

FCC Again Okays ABC, ITT Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has for the second time approved the merger of American Broadcasting Companies Inc. into International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. — the biggest merger in broadcasting history.

But the Justice Department has not decided yet whether to take its fight against the consolidation into court.

FCC Commissioners Robert E. Lee, Lee Loevinger, James J. Wadsworth and Chairman Rosel H. Hyde formed the majority in the same 4-3 lineup that prevailed when the FCC first approved the $2.8-billion merger Dec. 21.

The majority said IT&T's strong financial backing would enable ABC to better compete with the other two major networks — National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System.

The network says it will expand its color programming and build new studios as part of a $141-million program.

The new FCC decision was accompanied by a strongly worded 138-page minority opinion that accused some IT&T and ABC officials and witnesses of both companies of lack of candor and misrepresentations during their testimony at recent FCC hearings on the merger.

Dear Heloise: Don't throw away your old plastic-foam ice chest. It makes the best sewing basket . . .

To make the chest more decorative I sprayed mine with gold paint. One can use any color.

I took the lid off a cigar box and inserted it about half-way down in the ice chest (most have a ridge just about there) to hold scissors, thread, etc.

This chest is lightweight and roomy and if my pin cushion isn't handy I stick my needle anywhere on the "basket" instead of on the arm of the chair or couch.

I had some paint left over so I sprayed two lamp shades gold, two picture frames and one large potato chip can that the girls use for a wastebasket in their bedroom. All for seventy cents!

DEAR FOLKS: Do you use the wash cloths on top of the stack each week, wash them and put them back on the top of that stack?

Then wonder why a certain wash cloth, which matches that set of pretty towels, wears out or fades before the towels do?

As a suggestion, fold the matching wash cloths inside the hard towel, then stack them up.

Here's why:

The towel will be used at the same time as the wash cloth, and eventually they will all wear out at the same time.

Two hand towels and TWO wash clothes should be bought each time you purchase a bath towel.

This way they all wear out about the same time and you always have matching sets.

DEAR HELOISE: The newer style homes are combining the living room and dining areas and the type of furniture used in homes built about 40 years ago is becoming obsolete and out of style.

My idea was to remove the legs from the buffet and china closet and combine the two pieces.

I placed the china closet on top of the legless buffet.

All the wonderful space in the two pieces is valuable storage space and it is a beautiful piece of furniture which can be used either in the living room or in the dining area.

MRS. C. H. WHEELER.

DEAR HELOISE: For nearly 50 years I suffered with a salad thumb . . . especially during canning season when fruits and vegetables must be peeled by the bushel.

Then one day while shopping in an office supply store, I noticed a box of tough rubber thimbles of different sizes. The clerk said these were used to protect fingers from cuts while leafing through files . . .

I purchased several of the largest size to fit my thumb and no longer have cuts or slice marks!

These rubber thimbles are inexpensive, last a long time and are easier to put on and take off than tape.

DEAR HELOISE: The new coffee canister cans are marvelous for toy containers.

My boys are neither patient enough nor old enough to search through a toy chest to find all the pieces to a nested egg . . . or what have you.

I stack the cans in a box in the closet and pull out a "set" for morning play.

Toy cleaning day just means lining up the cans and tossing all the pieces into the right can!

I enjoy your Mother-saver hints. Give me more!

MRS. R. FULTON.

DEAR HELOISE: Occasionally, I have received perfume or cologne that is not exactly what I like to use.

Now, when I wash my bathroom floor, I put a few sprinkles of the cologne in the water and the bathroom has a mild fragrance which is quite delightful.

Patent Issued To Professor, Chemist Graduate Of Geneva

BEAVER FALLS — A U. S. patent has been issued covering a number of compounds invented by Dr. Roy M. Adams of Darlington, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Geneva College, and Mervin D. Marshall of Fombell, a research chemist at the Callery Chemical Co.

They also have a communication which is appearing in the June issue of The Journal of the American Chemical Society reporting for the first time "The Opening of the B/10 H/10 Cage." This discovery makes possible the production of certain boron-containing high-temperature stable polymers by a lower cost route than was previously available.

The patent number 3,320,310 assigned to Callaery was issued in May. It covers previously unknown type of compound with boron and nitrogen in ring structures.

Marshall, a 1950 graduate of Geneva and former student of Dr. Adams, did four years of graduate study at Pennsylvania State University, where he completed the academic requirements for his doctorate. His name has been listed on several patents and he has had articles published in various scientific journals.

Dr. Adams has worked closely with area industry, serving as a consultant to the Callery company since 1952. During 1952, he took a leave of absence from Geneva to serve as head of the Theoretical Section and Head of the Chemistry Department of Callery, and from 1953 to 1956 he served as research coordinator. He also formerly served as a consultant to the Midwest Research Institute at Kansas City, Mo.

His most recent article appeared in the May issue of the "Journal of Documentation," a quarterly publication by the American Chemical Society.

Entitled "Inorganic Nomenclature in 1966: Progress and Problems," the article is a brief discussion of the history and current status of inorganic nomenclature presented along with a discussion of the relationship between the American Chemical Society's work in nomenclature and that of the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry.

Tentative Okay Reached, Could End Long Strike

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— A tentative agreement, climaxing a day of picket line violence in which authorities used fire hoses and tear gas, was reached Thursday night and could end a six-week-long strike at the Stevens Manufacturing Co.

Officials of Local 709, International Union of Electrical Workers, said they would "strongly recommend" members ratify the proposed pact at 3 p.m. meeting today.

The agreement was announced for the company and the union by Federal Mediator Edward McManus, who said no production workers were scheduled to work today to give all union members a chance to vote. Only salaried and supervisory personnel were slated to work, with production returning to normal Monday.

Details of the agreement were not released.

McManus said the union agreed not to picket the Stevens plant at nearby Lexington, pending ratification of the contract. About 300 union members have been on strike since early May.

DEAR HELOISE: The newer style homes are combining the living room and dining areas and the type of furniture used in homes built about 40 years ago is becoming obsolete and out of style.

My idea was to remove the legs from the buffet and china closet and combine the two pieces.

I placed the china closet on top of the legless buffet.

All the wonderful space in the two piees is valuable storage space and it is a beautiful piece of furniture which can be used either in the living room or in the dining area.

MRS. C. H. WHEELER.

DEAR HELOISE: For nearly 50 years I suffered with a salad thumb . . . especially during canning season when fruits and vegetables must be peeled by the bushel.

Then one day while shopping in an office supply store, I noticed a box of tough rubber thimbles of different sizes. The clerk said these were used to protect fingers from cuts while leafing through files . . .

I purchased several of the largest size to fit my thumb and no longer have cuts or slice marks!

These rubber thimbles are inexpensive, last a long time and are easier to put on and take off than tape.

NELLIE GRAVES.

DEAR HELOISE: The new coffee canister cans are marvelous for toy containers.

My boys are neither patient enough nor old enough to search through a toy chest to find all the pieces to a nested egg . . . or what have you.

I stack the cans in a box in the closet and pull out a "set" for morning play.

Toy cleaning day just means lining up the cans and tossing all the pieces into the right can!

I enjoy your Mother-saver hints. Give me more!

MRS. R. FULTON.

DEAR HELOISE: Occasionally, I have received perfume or cologne that is not exactly what I like to use.

Now, when I wash my bathroom floor, I put a few sprinkles of the cologne in the water and the bathroom has a mild fragrance which is quite delightful.

MRS. C. B.

Patent Issued To Professor, Chemist Graduate Of Geneva

BEAVER FALLS — A U. S. patent has been issued covering a number of compounds invented by Dr. Roy M. Adams of Darlington, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Geneva College, and Mervin D. Marshall of Fombell, a research chemist at the Callery Chemical Co.

They also have a communication which is appearing in the June issue of The Journal of the American Chemical Society reporting for the first time "The Opening of the B/10 H/10 Cage." This discovery makes possible the production of certain boron-containing high-temperature stable polymers by a lower cost route than was previously available.

The patent number 3,320,310 assigned to Callaery was issued in May. It covers previously unknown type of compound with boron and nitrogen in ring structures.

Marshall, a 1950 graduate of Geneva and former student of Dr. Adams, did four years of graduate study at Pennsylvania State University, where he completed the academic requirements for his doctorate. His name has been listed on several patents and he has had articles published in various scientific journals.

Dr. Adams has worked closely with area industry, serving as a consultant to the Callery company since 1952. During 1952, he took a leave of absence from Geneva to serve as head of the Theoretical Section and Head of the Chemistry Department of Callery, and from 1953 to 1958 he served as research coordinator. He also formerly served as a consultant to the Midwest Research Institute at Kansas City, Mo.

His most recent article appeared in the May issue of the "Journal of Documentation," a quarterly publication by the American Chemical Society.

Entitled "Inorganic Nomenclature in 1966: Progress and Problems," the article is a brief discussion of the history and current status of inorganic nomenclature presented along with a discussion of the relationship between the American Chemical Society's work in nomenclature and that of the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry.

Children Visit Kin In Salineville

SALINEVILLE — Brenda Wright and Jeffrey Wright of Columbiana are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Jefferson St.

John Strabley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Strabley of Salineville, has been promoted to specialist four while serving as a clerk-typist for the Logististical Command at Saigon in Vietnam. Graduated from Southern Local High School in 1965, he entered the service September 1966.

Mayor Stanley Fitch was guest speaker during a meeting of the Ladies Civic Club Tuesday night at the elementary school cafeteria.

He discussed several projects for the improvement of and beautification of the city which were endorsed by the club.

Mrs. Nina Melhorn and Mrs. E. Ralston led games.

Lunch was served to 20 by Mrs. Margaret Maher, Mrs. Joyce Leek and Mrs. Irene Dent.

An "eat out" will be held in September.

Eskimos use the bolas for catching birds. A bolas is composed of three balls connected with each other at a common center by thongs several feet long. One ball, smaller than the others, is held while whirling the bolas. The purpose is to entangle the victim rather than to kill it, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Tentative Okay Reached, Could End Long Strike

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— A tentative agreement, climaxing a day of picket line violence in which authorities used fire hoses and tear gas, was reached Thursday night and could end a six-week-long strike at the Stevens Manufacturing Co.

Officials of Local 709, International Union of Electrical Workers, said they would "strongly recommend" members ratify the proposed pact at 3 p.m. meeting today.

The agreement was announced for the company and the union by Federal Mediator Edward McManus, who said no production workers were scheduled to work today to give all union members a chance to vote. Only salaried and supervisory personnel were slated to work, with production returning to normal Monday.

Details of the agreement were not released.

McManus said the union agreed not to picket the Stevens plant at nearby Lexington, pending ratification of the contract. About 300 union members have been on strike since early May.

Juvenile Aide Named For Beaver DA Office

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about the 19-year-old girl who couldn't bring herself to have a physical examination by a male doctor.

We are two 20-year-old girls who have the same problem and we do not feel that we need psychiatric help, as you suggested. We discussed this with our own physician and he says it is perfectly normal for a young woman to be a little frightened and embarrassed under these circumstances.

Generally your advice is good, but we think you are way off the beam this time.

Let's hear more from you again — after you have discussed this with your physician. — EMBARRASSED AND SANE FROM BILLINGS.

Dear E and S: It is indeed perfectly normal for a young woman to be a little frightened and embarrassed under the conditions described, but the girl who wrote was more than a little frightened and embarrassed. She was experiencing severe anxiety symptoms, feelings of depression and guilt, and becoming incapacitated.

For six months she had been manufacturing excuses for not taking a job because she was afraid to be examined by a company physician and would not go to her own physician. Got it straight now, girls?

The Dogs Have It

Dear Ann: I think you could have said a lot more in support of the man who complained about the neighbor's dog who consistently messed up their lawn, shrubs and driveway. From your short, shrift answer, it's obvious that you live in an apartment and have no lawn or driveway worries.

I'm a home owner who has had to put up with plenty. Our neighborhood dogs have scratched our doors, barked all night, upset our trash cans, ruined our lawn, bit our postman, torn my stocking, jumped on my laundry baskets, knocked our child off his tricycle and attacked our cat.

You hinted gently that dog owners should not allow their pets to run loose. Why didn't you come right out and blast these thoughtless people in the Ann Landers style we are accustomed to? — DISAPPOINTED.

Dear Disappointed: I thought I made it plain when I said, "Most cities have dog leash laws and people who love their pets obey the laws. A dog on the loose can be poisoned, stolen, hit by a car or attacked by a wild animal who is rabid."

If you can think of a better way to say it, let me know. I'm open to suggestions.

A Matter Of Choice

Dear Ann: I need help with a problem I can't handle alone. Seven months ago our daughter, Selma, came home with her two little children. Her husband walked out and she can't even find him to prosecute for support money. She has a full-time job and pays us room and board.

Selma acts like she's a house guest. She never washes a dish or makes a bed. She goes out almost every evening and has a grand time. Selma pays very little attention to her children, who are the most adorable youngsters in the world. I'd kick her out in five minutes (my husband says I should) but I know she would neglect her children and it would break my heart. Please tell me what to do.—CAN'T DECIDE.

Dear Can't: You will be far unhappier if you kick Selma out. At least now you know your grandchildren are being cared for properly. Accept the undesirable aspects of this situation and keep the family under your roof. Good it isn't — but it's the lesser of the two evils.

---

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

UFO's Outlined By Engineer For Kiwanis Meeting

Are there really beings from outer space who visit the earth aboard saucer - shaped vehicles?

A review of the consensus of thinking by knowledgeable people across the nation concerning Unidentified Flying Objects was presented by Fred Simmen of Oakmont at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club Thursday at the Travelers Hotel.

Simmen, a ceramic engineer, said he became interested in UFO reports about a year ago and has done extensive reading on the subject.

He said there have been thousands of sightings of such objects since the beginning of written history. The common description is of saucer - shaped, fast-moving vehicles, 25 to 80 feet in diameter, with speeds measured at up to 18,000 miles an hour.

There also have been larger cigar - shaped vehicles which could be mother ships from which the beings are transported from other planets, Simmen said.

The beings who have been observed on earth have been of three types: those about 4 feet tall, dressed in shiny - clothed suits and who shy away from humans; smaller, hairy humanoids who are more aggressive, and those who appear and dress like humans.

Simmen said the vehicles could possibly be capable of such high speeds in the earth's atmosphere through an electromagnetic force which creates a shield of a plasma material.

He said the visits to this planet could be motivated by a mere curiosity about what is taking place on this planet which is probably on a much lower level of civilized development.

Summer Influx Of Hippies Has Begun In Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The summer influx of hippies has begun, authorities said Thursday.

But, said Police Capt. Dan Kiely, "Some of them are leaving the same day they get here. It's too cold to sleep out in San Francisco."

Officers in the Haight-Ashbury District reported there is disillusionment, too, over the absence of feminine companionship.

"They somehow got the idea that there would be free love, free pot, free food and a free place to sleep."

Earlier, Haight Street hippies had predicted nearly 100,000 young people would come to San Francisco for "a summer of love."

Thousands gathered Wednesday to celebrate the first day of summer, but officers said most were members of the local set.

Local Golfers Do Well . . .

William C. (Chuck) Heasley dropped us a note on the fine showing that two East Liverpool golfers made earlier this month during the 23rd Bernhardt Amateur golf Tournament held at Oglebay Park, Wheeling.

Heasley, a former safety-service director here, is now manager of an insurance company office in Wheeling.

Tom Cloran and Bob Wolfe were the local golfers. A record field of 296 golfers, including some of the top amateurs in the area, competed. Cloran and Wolfe finished in the top 40.

A 135 total won the tourney, with Cloran winding up in the top eight with a 140. Wolfe was farther down the list with a 146.

Cloran surprised the experts the opening day when he fired the best round of the tournament with a seven-under 64. He shot a 76 the next day.

Wolfe fired a 67 in the opening round and a 79 the second day.

Heasley said Cloran's 64 had the whole town buzzing.

Coaching Change At Niles . . .

COACHING changes have taken place at Niles, with former backfield coach Fred Conti being named head coach.

Conti replaces Bob Shaw, who has been named an assistant coach at Bucknell University. Shaw compiled a 16-2-2 record in two years, including an undefeated season last year.

Conti will be starting his ninth year at Niles after serving under Tony Mason and Shaw.

THE FIVE winners brought home by William Sollars Tuesday night at Waterford Park tied an all-time Waterford record established in 1953 by none other than Willie Hartack, who began his brilliant career at Waterford. Both Sollars and Hartack rode five out of six mounts to victory.

Anytime a jockey puts on a show like Sollars, track officials begin searching the record books to see how close the performance was to an all-time mark.

The books show the greatest riding record ever set by a jockey on a major track was turned in on Oct. 1, 1956, by Johnny Heckmann at Hawthorne when he guided home seven of his eight mounts.

The only comparable accomplishment was that of Joe Sylvester at Ravenna Park in Ohio on Oct. 18, 1930 when he won seven of eight chances. But the Ravenna course was a small, half-mile track.

Cards Score 7-2 Victory Over Dodgers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a good thing Hank Aaron isn't mad at San Francisco. There's no telling what kind of damage he'd do to the Giants then.

Aaron, who was involved in a squabble with teammate Rico Carty as Atlanta flew west Sunday night, continues to take it out on the rest of the league.

He walloped a two-run homer in the eighth inning lifting the Braves to a 6-4 victory in the second game and a doubleheader sweep against the Giants Thursday. He doubled home Atlanta's first run in the 2-1 first game triumph.

In the only other National League game played Thursday, St. Louis beat Los Angeles 7-2. New York's game at Philadelphia was postponed by rain, and the other teams were not scheduled.

Aaron's 18th home run, which won the second game for the Braves, gave the Atlanta slugger the National League homer lead.

He drove in three runs in the doubleheader with three hits in seven trips and raised his batting average to .322.

In the first game, Aaron doubled home winning pitcher Phil Niekro in the third inning. An inning later, Woody Woodward's double drove in Denis Menke with Atlanta's second run.

That was enough to beat Gaylord Perry, who struck out 10 but lost his eighth game. Niekro, sprung from the bullpen, hurled a six-hitter and won his third game.

Aaron broke open the nightcap in the eighth against Frank Linzy with Tito Francona on base. Mack Jones also had two-run shot for the Braves.

Willie Mays' 10th home run of the season and 552nd career shot accounted for the Giants' only run in the opener. Claude Raymond, who got credit for the second game victory, got Mays pinch hitting, to smack into a rally-ending double play in the nightcap.

St. Louis scored three times in the sixth inning to go ahead of the Dodgers. Dal Maxvill's scoring single drove home the tie-breaking run as the Cardinals beat Los Angeles for the sixth straight time.

Steve Carlton limited the Dodgers to six hits including run-scoring singles by Ron Fairly and Wes Parker.

Close Games Featured In Little League

All games in the Little League were decided by one-run margins Thursday.

Veteran's Plate Glass edged Golden Star, 6-5, Travelers nipped Vernon Dell, 9-8 and Parsons Coal was an 8-7 winner over Chester Legion.

Veteran Glass scored two runs in the sixth inning to come from behind for the victory over Golden Star. Moffett's double and Hanlon's single were the big blows for Veterans in the sixth. Moffett paced the winners with three hits. Davis was the winning pitcher with Francis the loser.

Travelers Hotel had one big inning by scoring four runs in its victory over Vernon Dell as Boughner led the attack with three hits. Anderson had two hits for Vernon Dell. Howell was the winning pitcher while Tice was checked with the loss.

Parsons Coal pushed across two runs in the seventh inning to nip Chester Legion. A walk and doubles by McGeehan and Davis led the winning runs by Parsons. Davis and Samples had three hits each for the winners while Brad Glass and Wynds collected two each for Chester. Parsons gained the mound victory with Huff the loser.

Palmer, 2 Others Tied For Second

Unknown Leads Cleveland Open By 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two of golfdom's greats, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, were surprised by first-round developments in the $103,500 Cleveland Open.

"Who?" asked Palmer, after he was told that Wayne Yates was the 18-hole leader.

The popular Pennsylvania pro admitted he did not know who Yates was after the 25-year-old Atlanta performer carded a four-under-par 66 in Thursday's first round.

That gave Yates, in his second year as a tour regular, a one-stroke edge over Palmer, veteran Dan Sikes and young Dick Lotz.

But Palmer figures the scores are going to get better on the par 70, 6,611-yard Aurora Country Club layout.

"Somebody will shoot 65 before the week is over . . . maybe even 60," Palmer, the tour's leading money-winner, predicted.

Nicklaus, who played erratically and admitted he was bothered by the wet course, disagreed.

"Sure someone can shoot 60, if he quits at 14," the power hitter from Columbus, Ohio, quipped.

Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open last weekend with a brilliant display of precision golf, staggered home with a 72 Thursday in a round that included five bogeys.

And Jack evidently was surprised that two dozen players broke par.

"I think the scores are as low as they are going to get," Nicklaus said. "I thought after practing nine holes Wednesday that the winning score would be 280. But, obviously, 280 won't win it."

Yates, who rang up six birdies and two bogeys, has earned only $3,781 this year.

"My whole game was in good shape," said the rangy Georgian, whose best previous effort was a tie for 11th in the Memphis Open.

Two strokes back of the leader going into today's second round were Dow Finsterwald, Bob Stanton, Lionel Hebert, Raymond Floyd, Gardner Dickinson, Bob Charles and former U. S. Open king Ken Venturi.

The veteran Finsterwald, a PGA winner in 1958, was four under par going into the final two holes but took bogeys on both.

Masters champion Gay Brewer was in contention with 69, and Billy Casper stood at 70.

R.H. Sikes, the defending titlist, carded a 73 while Julius Boros, second leading money winner on the tour, skied to a 74 after suffering a triple bogey 7 on the 15th hole.

The field of 141 pros and two amateurs was to be trimmed to the low 70 scorers and ties after today's round.

Indians' Bats Silenced By Californians

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It took Al Kaline just one day to rediscover the thrill of hitting a home run in a winning or losing cause. And it felt so good, the Tiger slugger did it twice.

Kaline broke out of a hitting slump — he slipped to third in American League batting while it was going on — with a home run in Wednesday night's contest against Minnesota. But the game was called after eight innings because of rain and the teams tied 5-5.

But Thursday, with rain still plaguing much of the league's schedule, the Tigers and Twins managed to complete their contest, with Kaline's two homers, which give him 15 for the season, powering Detroit to a 5-2 victory.

In the only other American League game not rained out, California shut out Cleveland 7-0. Victims of the weather were Kansas City at Baltimore and Boston at New York.

In all, Kaline drove in three of the Tigers' runs, giving him 51 for the season and making him third among the league leaders.

"It felt," he said succinctly, "good."

Norm Cash also homered for Detroit.

Joe Sparma gave the second-place Tigers something else to grin about, turning in a four-hit performance and picking up his seventh triumph of the season against just one defeat.

A double by losing pitcher Jim Kaat and a sacrifice fly by Zoilo Versalles accounted for the Minnesota runs.

Jim McGlothlin of the Angels turned in the pitching gem of the evening, allowing the Indians only three singles as he rode a powerful California attack to his seventh victory of the season. He has lost one.

A two-run homer by John Werhas and a solo shot by Paul Schal provided the muscle in the early innings, and the Angels got two runs in both the eighth and sixth innings to rub it in.

Lawrenceville Wins 7-6 In League Game

Lawrenceville of the South Side Senior League edged Hanover, 7-6, Thursday.

Frank Amedeo's triple was the big blow for Lawrenceville as Bill Lyons was the winning pitcher. Larry Cox was the loser and Dave Cox paced Hanover at the plate with a home run, triple and double.

Apaches Top Tigers

Chick Jarvis was the winning pitcher when the Highlandtown Apaches defeated the No. 16 Tigers, 9-5, Thursday in an HIHS League game.

Dr. Fager, Furl Sail Head $100,000 Races

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dr. Fager, challenging Damascus for the top spot among the 3-year-old colts, and Furl Sail, away winging in quest of the 3-year-old filly title, head an all-star cast which will be seen in action on the American turf.

Both top their fields in $100,000-plus events with Dr. Fager going in the one mile of the Arlington Classic at Arlington Park and Furl Sail in the 1¼ miles of the Coaching Club American Oaks—final leg of New York's Triple Crown for sophomore fillies at Aqueduct.

Three-year-olds also will be in competition for the 1⅛ miles of the $50,000-added Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park and the 108th running of the 1¼ miles of the $79,725 Queens Plate at Woodbine. The Queens Plate, oldest stakes race in North America, is exclusively for Canadian-bred horses.

Lightly campaigned Dr. Fager, a one-half length winner over Damascus in the one mile of the Gotham at Aqueduct two months ago, will be making his first start since being disqualified out of first money in the Jersey Derby May 30. He finished first by six lengths but was dropped to last in the four-horse field.

Chief among those slated to tackle the Tartan Stable speedster are the mud-loving Disciplinarian, stablemate of Buckpasser who set a world record of 1:32 3-5 in the Classic last year; Diplomat Way, winner of the rich Arlington-Washington Futurity in 1966 on the same track, and the flashy Lightning Orphan, on the comeback trial after bucking his shins in the Kentucky Derby.

Dr. Fager, Disciplinarian and Lightning Orphan will carry 120 pounds each with Lightning Orphan picking up 118. Braulio Baeza, slated to depart Sunday to ride Assagai in the Grand Prix de St. Cloud in Paris July 2, will be aboard Dr. Fager with hot-shot Angel Cofdero Jr. astride Diplomat Way, Johnny Sellers up on Disciplinarian and Ray Broussard in the saddle of Lightning Orphan.

Furl Sail, already winner of the Acorn and Mother Goose, can pick up an additional $25,000 for her owner, Mrs. Edwin K. Thomas, by winning the American Oaks and sweeping the series. No other filly ever has accomplished the feat.

The front-running Furl Sail, who was supplemented to the Oaks at the cost of $10,000, is expected to have eight or nine rivals incuding Quillo Queen, a $92,000 yearling who was the runner-up in both the Acorn and Mother Goose.

Floor Battle Set Saturday

MARION, Ohio (AP)—All was in readiness here today for Saturday night's clash of Ohio schoolboy cagers in the renewal of the annual North-South Classic at Marion Coliseum.

A few tickets for the all-star game still were available.

Twenty of the top basketball performers in last winter's high school campaign will be seen in action in the game sponsored by the Ohio High School Basketball Coaches Association, mating the top senior stars from northern Ohio against the top performers from the southern section of the state.

The game will climax an all-day coaching clinic to be held at Harding High School. The North will be seeking its second straight win, having won a 98-97 overtime victory here last year. The Yankee forces hold a 4-3 edge in the overall series.

Ken Newlon of Canton Lincoln and Charles Huggins of Strasburg High School are coaching the North team, and Tom Bryant of Colerain and Bill Whaley of Alexander High School, Albany, will coach the South squad.

William C. (Chuck) Heasley dropped us a note on the fine showing that two East Liverpool golfers made earlier this month during the 23rd Bernhardt Amateur golf Tournament held at Oglebay Park, Wheeling.

Heasley, a former safety-service director here, is now manager of an insurance company office in Wheeling.

Tom Cloran and Bob Wolfe were the local golfers. A record field of 296 golfers, including some of the top amateurs in the area, competed. Cloran and Wolfe finished in the top 40.

A 135 total won the tourney, with Cloran winding up in the top eight with a 140. Wolfe was farther down the list with a 146.

Cloran surprised the experts the opening day when he fired the best round of the tournament with a seven-under 64. He shot a 76 the next day.

Wolfe fired a 67 in the opening round and a 79 the second day.

Heasley said Cloran's 64 had the whole town buzzing.

Joe Sparma gave the second-place Tigers something else to grin about, turning in a four-hit performance and picking up his seventh triumph of the season against just one defeat.

A double by losing pitcher Jim Kaat and a sacrifice fly by Zoilo Versalles accounted for the Minnesota runs.

Jim McGlothlin of the Angels turned in the pitching gem of the evening, allowing the Indians only three singles as he rode a powerful California attack to his seventh victory of the season. He has lost one.

A two-run homer by John Werhas and a solo shot by Paul Schal provided the muscle in the early innings, and the Angels got two runs in both the eighth and sixth innings to rub it in.

Dr. Fager, Furl Sail Head $100,000 Races

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dr. Fager, challenging Damascus for the top spot among the 3-year-old colts, and Furl Sail, away winging in quest of the 3-year-old filly title, head an all-star cast which will be seen in action on the American turf.

Both top their fields in $100,000-plus events with Dr. Fager going in the one mile of the Arlington Classic at Arlington Park and Furl Sail in the 1¼ miles of the Coaching Club American Oaks—final leg of New York's Triple Crown for sophomore fillies at Aqueduct.

Three-year-olds also will be in competition for the 1⅛ miles of the $50,000-added Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park and the 108th running of the 1¼ miles of the $79,725 Queens Plate at Woodbine. The Queens Plate, oldest stakes race in North America, is exclusively for Canadian-bred horses.

Lightly campaigned Dr. Fager, a one-half length winner over Damascus in the one mile of the Gotham at Aqueduct two months ago, will be making his first start since being disqualified out of first money in the Jersey Derby May 30. He finished first by six lengths but was dropped to last in the four-horse field.

Chief among those slated to tackle the Tartan Stable speedster are the mud-loving Disciplinarian, stablemate of Buckpasser who set a world record of 1:32 3-5 in the Classic last year; Diplomat Way, winner of the rich Arlington-Washington Futurity in 1966 on the same track, and the flashy Lightning Orphan, on the comeback trial after bucking his shins in the Kentucky Derby.

Dr. Fager, Disciplinarian and Lightning Orphan will carry 120 pounds each with Lightning Orphan picking up 118. Braulio Baeza, slated to depart Sunday to ride Assagai in the Grand Prix de St. Cloud in Paris July 2, will be aboard Dr. Fager with hot-shot Angel Cofdero Jr. astride Diplomat Way, Johnny Sellers up on Disciplinarian and Ray Broussard in the saddle of Lightning Orphan.

Furl Sail, already winner of the Acorn and Mother Goose, can pick up an additional $25,000 for her owner, Mrs. Edwin K. Thomas, by winning the American Oaks and sweeping the series. No other filly ever has accomplished the feat.

The front-running Furl Sail, who was supplemented to the Oaks at the cost of $10,000, is expected to have eight or nine rivals incuding Quillo Queen, a $92,000 yearling who was the runner-up in both the Acorn and Mother Goose.

Floor Battle Set Saturday

MARION, Ohio (AP)—All was in readiness here today for Saturday night's clash of Ohio schoolboy cagers in the renewal of the annual North-South Classic at Marion Coliseum.

A few tickets for the all-star game still were available.

Twenty of the top basketball performers in last winter's high school campaign will be seen in action in the game sponsored by the Ohio High School Basketball Coaches Association, mating the top senior stars from northern Ohio against the top performers from the southern section of the state.

The game will climax an all-day coaching clinic to be held at Harding High School. The North will be seeking its second straight win, having won a 98-97 overtime victory here last year. The Yankee forces hold a 4-3 edge in the overall series.

Ken Newlon of Canton Lincoln and Charles Huggins of Strasburg High School are coaching the North team, and Tom Bryant of Colerain and Bill Whaley of Alexander High School, Albany, will coach the South squad.

Travelers Hotel had one big inning by scoring four runs in its victory over Vernon Dell as Boughner led the attack with three hits. Anderson had two hits for Vernon Dell. Howell was the winning pitcher while Tice was checked with the loss.

French Trot Star Captures $50,000 Race

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Henri Levesque of France is finding his trips to the United States with Roquepine very profitable.

The 6-year-old French mare made her fourth start in this country in the $50,000 Gotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night and had no trouble posting her third victory to run her U. S. earnings to $112,500.

Last year she made three appearances on American soil, winning the $100,000 United Nations Trot at Yonkers and the Challenge Cup at Roosevelt Raceway after finishing second in the rich Roosevelt International. She'll have a chance to repeat in the United Nations next Thursday.

Although driver Jean-Rene Gougeon said the great French trotter didn't like the wet track, she had no trouble handling her opposition after being forced to race on the outside for almost one mile of the 1¼-miles.

Italian-owned Dashing Rodney, driven by West German ace Gerhard Kruger kept her there, but that didn't worry Gougeon.

"I could have taken the lead earlier," said Gougeon after sending Roquepine across the finish line 2½ lengths in front of Style Setter, with Canada's Fresh Yankee another 1½ lengths back in third place.

Hines Defeats Greene In 9.3 As Meet Opens

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — In tonight's national AAU track and field competition, Jim Ryun, Tommie Smith, Bob Seagren and Randy Matson are likely to generate the excitemest if not the heat that followed Jimmy Hines' narrow victory over Charlie Greene in their gripping 100-yard dash.

Hines, the Texas Southern flash, nipped Greene of Nebraska at the tape in 9.3 seconds Thursday night in the most exciting race of the opening session of these annual championships.

But Greene, the defending champion, was unconvinced. From behind his sunglasses the outspoken speedster asked: "What do you have to do to win? It shouldn't have even gone to a photo. I beat him at the tape."

Hines, who beat Greene last month at Modesto, Calif., setting up their confrontation, saw it differently. "I got a good start," he said, "and I thought I won in the last few yards."

Viewing the photo, Greene conceded that the result could have been a tie, but then he protested that Hines had broken from the starting blocks before the gun.

The verdict stood, however, and Hines now faces the challenge of Tommie Smith in tonight's 220. Smith the San Jose State sensation, holds the world record of 20.0 for the distance, but Hines beat him three weeks ago in Los Angeles.

Ryun coasted to a 4:07.5 clocking in a mile semifinal and the Kansas sophomore is an overwhelming favorite against veteran Jim Grelle, Oregon's twosome of Roscoe Divine and Dave Wilborn, and Martin Liquori, of the Essex, N.J., Catholic High school.

Just how close Ryun intends to run to his world mark of 3:51.3 is problematical because he hasn't indicated just when he'll zero in on his all-time best.

Matson, the Texas A&M muscleman, passed up the discus to concentrate on the shotput, where he holds the pending world record of 71 feet, 7 inches. Seagren, from Southern California, will shoot for 17-8 or better in the pole vault after clearing 17-7 for a world record two weeks ago.

Young Gerry Lindgren, who seems to lose weight and height as the years pass, charged away from his only opposition, Lou Scott, on the gun lap and won going away in the three-mile. The Washington State star's time was a good 13:10.6.

Not all the veterans won, however. Long jumper Ralph Boston lost his duel with Jerry Proctor, the high school phenomenon from Pasadena, Calif. Proctor leaped 26¾ to edge Boston's 26¼.

Glenn Miller Orchestra Set At Waterford

When the Glenn Miller Orchestra under the direction of Buddy DeFranco plays at the Waterford Park race track next Tuesday (June 27) it will mark the first time a "name band" has performed at a race track in this area. In other parts of the country, however, name orchestras have been engaged for special performances, notably at Pimlico where they run the Preakness and at Monmouth and Atlantic City tracks in New Jersey.

The occasion for the Miller Orchestra at Waterford is a sort of an appreciation by James F. Edwards, president of the track. He wants to give the many Waterford Park fans a "night out" so to speak and his wife, Joan, came up with the idea of having a night of dancing. In order to make it a complete evening on the Edwards' admission to the grandstand area will be free.

The Miller Orchestra will play from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m., dancing will be held after the last race on the mezzanine floors of the Club House and Grandstand.

DeFranco, the present leader of the Miller Orchestra, has a deep admiration for musicians who have mastered their instruments. He has a great admiration for top jazz performers, but he also listens to the legit men such as Stanley Drucker of the New York Philharmonic.

Jay Miller, 6-5, who played with the U.S. team in Montevideo after being selected from the champion AAU Akron Goodyears, turned pro. The former Notre Dame star signed to play with the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

Three other former college stars also signed pro contracts.

Clem Haskins, 6-3 All-America from Western Kentucky, signed with the Chicago Bulls of the NBA.

Walt Frazier, 6-4 little All-America who led Southern Illinois to the NIT championship last March, signed with the New York Knicks of the NBA for a reported $90,000 over three years.

Gary Keller, 6-10 star of the University of Florida, signed with Denver in the new American Basketball Association which will start play next season.

French Trot Star Captures $50,000 Race

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Henri Levesque of France is finding his trips to the United States with Roquepine very profitable.

The 6-year-old French mare made her fourth start in this country in the $50,000 Gotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night and had no trouble posting her third victory to run her U. S. earnings to $112,500.

Last year she made three appearances on American soil, winning the $100,000 United Nations Trot at Yonkers and the Challenge Cup at Roosevelt Raceway after finishing second in the rich Roosevelt International. She'll have a chance to repeat in the United Nations next Thursday.

Although driver Jean-Rene Gougeon said the great French trotter didn't like the wet track, she had no trouble handling her opposition after being forced to race on the outside for almost one mile of the 1¼-miles.

Italian-owned Dashing Rodney, driven by West German ace Gerhard Kruger kept her there, but that didn't worry Gougeon.

"I could have taken the lead earlier," said Gougeon after sending Roquepine across the finish line 2½ lengths in front of Style Setter, with Canada's Fresh Yankee another 1½ lengths back in third place.

Hines Defeats Greene In 9.3 As Meet Opens

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — In tonight's national AAU track and field competition, Jim Ryun, Tommie Smith, Bob Seagren and Randy Matson are likely to generate the excitemest if not the heat that followed Jimmy Hines' narrow victory over Charlie Greene in their gripping 100-yard dash.

Hines, the Texas Southern flash, nipped Greene of Nebraska at the tape in 9.3 seconds Thursday night in the most exciting race of the opening session of these annual championships.

But Greene, the defending champion, was unconvinced. From behind his sunglasses the outspoken speedster asked: "What do you have to do to win? It shouldn't have even gone to a photo. I beat him at the tape."

Hines, who beat Greene last month at Modesto, Calif., setting up their confrontation, saw it differently. "I got a good start," he said, "and I thought I won in the last few yards."

Viewing the photo, Greene conceded that the result could have been a tie, but then he protested that Hines had broken from the starting blocks before the gun.

The verdict stood, however, and Hines now faces the challenge of Tommie Smith in tonight's 220. Smith the San Jose State sensation, holds the world record of 20.0 for the distance, but Hines beat him three weeks ago in Los Angeles.

Ryun coasted to a 4:07.5 clocking in a mile semifinal and the Kansas sophomore is an overwhelming favorite against veteran Jim Grelle, Oregon's twosome of Roscoe Divine and Dave Wilborn, and Martin Liquori, of the Essex, N.J., Catholic High school.

Just how close Ryun intends to run to his world mark of 3:51.3 is problematical because he hasn't indicated just when he'll zero in on his all-time best.

Matson, the Texas A&M muscleman, passed up the discus to concentrate on the shotput, where he holds the pending world record of 71 feet, 7 inches. Seagren, from Southern California, will shoot for 17-8 or better in the pole vault after clearing 17-7 for a world record two weeks ago.

Young Gerry Lindgren, who seems to lose weight and height as the years pass, charged away from his only opposition, Lou Scott, on the gun lap and won going away in the three-mile. The Washington State star's time was a good 13:10.6.

Not all the veterans won, however. Long jumper Ralph Boston lost his duel with Jerry Proctor, the high school phenomenon from Pasadena, Calif. Proctor leaped 26¾ to edge Boston's 26¼.

Glenn Miller Orchestra Set At Waterford

When the Glenn Miller Orchestra under the direction of Buddy DeFranco plays at the Waterford Park race track next Tuesday (June 27) it will mark the first time a "name band" has performed at a race track in this area. In other parts of the country, however, name orchestras have been engaged for special performances, notably at Pimlico where they run the Preakness and at Monmouth and Atlantic City tracks in New Jersey.

The occasion for the Miller Orchestra at Waterford is a sort of an appreciation by James F. Edwards, president of the track. He wants to give the many Waterford Park fans a "night out" so to speak and his wife, Joan, came up with the idea of having a night of dancing. In order to make it a complete evening on the Edwards' admission to the grandstand area will be free.

The Miller Orchestra will play from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m., dancing will be held after the last race on the mezzanine floors of the Club House and Grandstand.

DeFranco, the present leader of the Miller Orchestra, has a deep admiration for musicians who have mastered their instruments. He has a great admiration for top jazz performers, but he also listens to the legit men such as Stanley Drucker of the New York Philharmonic.

Andy Starts Final Season

This week Andy Griffith began filming the final 30 chapters in the TV saga of the sheriff of Mayberry. After next season (his eighth) Andy quits TV except for a special a year the following three years on CBS.

Hal Humphrey

It will have been a fruitful eight years for both Andy and his millions of fans. He and those around him have managed to bring to TV one of its better comedies. The laugh track didn't have to be turned up to hide weak writing, and the small-town humor was kept honest, usually by Andy himself who always makes a point of working with the writers.

-:-

THE Andy Griffith Show has maintained characterization. The people in it never are made to act out of character to accommodate a particular situation.

One knows in advance now what attitude Andy will take when son Opie rebels against some new descipline. Much of the show's humor is derived from our knowing and anticipating these reactions.

When Floyd the barber finds the rent on his shop is being raised by Otis, who has become his new landlord, we're pretty sure he's going to protest. But it's the form of protest and Andy's failure to see how it will reverberate against his functioning as an efficient sheriff that keeps us hooked for the half-hour.

AUNT BEE'S involvement in starting a Chinese restaurant or Andy's visit to Barney on his new job (Don Knotts as a guest this season) were generally predicaments rooted in the characterizations which are kept carefully hewed to a line of genuine people and give the viewers an atmosphere not felt on many TV shows these days.

There is a tendency in comedy shows on TV now to have all of the characters pressing for laughs. Everyone is a comedian, or trying to be, by having something funny to say. This can become awfully boring to viewers who may not consider all of those joke lines so funny.

This type has been matched in numbers the past season by the gimmick type of comedy, i.e. Captain Nice in which the hero flies or "It's About Time" wherein the characters are from another age. Neither, incidentally, will be around next season, because they were infantile in conception and audiences did not think them funny.

BESIDES tickling your funny bone, it's relaxing to watch the Andy Griffith Show. There isn't the frastic rushing around you get with many of TV's comedy series, hence you have time to savor the humor of the situation.

Some so-called experts thought Don Knotts' leaving the show two seasons ago would hurt it irreparably. Naturally he was missed, but not to a point where the fans stopped watching. In fact, Andy's Nielsen ratisg during the recent season was as high or higher than any of the previous six years.

In the series' upcoming eighth and last season, things are to be about the same with the sheriff of Mayberry. One new addition will be Paul Hartman, who will have a fix-it shop next to the barber shop. Howard McNear, who is Floyd the barber, has not been in the best of health, so Hartman's character is being added to spell McNear somewhat.

WHY IS ANDY quitting? For one thing, his manager, Dick Linke, has committed him to a two-picture-a-year contract with Universal beginning next year and running through 1973. Andy really thought it was time to move on to other things two years ago, but CBS prevailed upon him to stay — and the price was right.

Now, however, everyone involved feels the series has run its course. There are only so many predicaments Andy and his gang can get in and out of, unless they want to begin rewriting them, which no one wants to do.

Also, doing two pictures a year is a lot less work than filming 30 half-hour episodes, including a TV special. Andy is 41 and doesn't need to work this hard any more. If the general run of comedy series on TV doesn't show some improvement, he really will be missed from the 1968-69 TV scene.

Retailers Rap Tax Proposal

The executive committee of the East Liverpool Merchants Association voiced strong objections Thursday afternoon to a proposal placed before the General Assembly by Gov. James Rhodes' administration calling for a new 1 per cent gross receipts tax on retailers, expected to raise $100 million or more a year.

Meeting in special session at the Chamber of Commerce office, the ELMA executives ordered telegrams sent to State Sen. John Longsworth of Salem and State Rep. Clarence L. Wetzel of Lisbon urging them to "actively oppose" the measure.

The businessmen also agreed to send a wire to Gov. Rhodes advising that they "strongly oppose" the "unfair tax."

The proposed gross receipts tax would affect all retailers except those handling food.

It was among new measures proposed at Columbus to raise $253 additional for education.

It stirred immediate opposition from retailers throughout Ohio, who commented it would mean economic ruin for many businessmen. They added that businessmen would not be able to absorb the new tax burden and would be forced to pass it on to consumers.

A companion proposal would apply the state sales tax to laundry, dry cleaning, parking, beer, cigarettes and other items and services, lower the starting bracket from the present 31 cents and boost the state levy on cigarettes from five to seven cents a pack.

Lang Will Serve As Delegate To Church Meeting

Francis H. Lang was elected Wednesday night by the Northeast Ohio Methodist Conference at Lakeside to serve as an official delegate to the General Conference next April at Dallas, Tex.

To date, six have been elected, with two more to be named later today. Lang is the lay representative from the First Methodist Church.

As delegate to the general conference, he automatically is to serve as delegate to the North Central jurisdictional meeting in October at Peoria, Ill., as one of 19 laymen.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Exercise Brings Zing!

Stretch to pull figure out of the dumps and banish bulges. To be beautiful, bodies must be used and circulation roused. Muscles must pull and be released. Sedentary workers particularly need to stretch, bend and move. Obviously nature didn't intend for us to just sit. All Ida Jean Kain sitters, join us. Try a free - wheeling stretch.

WORK-A-DAY sitters slowly acquire a pincushion of fat along the outer thighline, just below the waist. You can pull off that bulge with a stretch-bend-hold routine. The exercise technique is to direct the pull through the fat pad with an up-stretch carried through to a sidebend. At the peak of the bend, hold the muscle contraction for a slow count of six, or for six seconds. Not longer.

This stretch - bend, known as the stretch - reflex, stimulates contraction. Make sure you put the pull through the bulge, stretch below the bulge.

Position: Standing, feet well apart. Arch arms overhead, fingers interlaced, palms turned up. Pull up with girdle musles, then pull in forcibly. In this way the diagonal muscles, the obliques, which bound the sides of the silhouette below and above waist area, will be brought into the contraction.

ACTION: Stretch up, centering the pull through the trunk, then slowly bend sidewards, as far as comfortable. Look up. At this point in the stretch - bend, hold. Hold the contraction to a slow count of six. Slowly come back to upright position, again contract with girdle muscles, pull slim through midsection by stretching up. Bend to the opposite side and hold. Repeat three complete times.

Stretching, coupled with side-bending helps you to feel slim and supple. Well, maybe you won't feel supple at first, or slim either. But you will if you ease into exercises gradually, pull smoothly and feel the rhythm. Six minutes will do for a starter.

Resistance to exercise is mainly mental. Start and the stretch impulse finishes itself. Exercise is fun and slimming.

Loan Applications Accepted To Assist In Rural Housing

The Farmers Home Administration is accepting loan applications from rural families who need to improve their housing, Boyd M. Turner Jr., the agency's supervisor for Hancock, Brooke, Marshall and Ohio counties, said today.

Funds are available, Turner pointed out, to build, improve or repair rural homes and related facilities. In addition to major construction, funds are available to modernize homes—add bathrooms, install central heating systems, modern kitchens, as well as make other home improvements.

Funds also can be used to buy an existing house or to buy a minimum adequate building site or buy a newly-constructed house.

To be eligible for an FHA loan, one must live in a rural area or own land in a rural area; "be without decent, safe, sanitary housing," and be unable to finance the needed improvements at reasonable rates and terms from other lenders in the area.

Turner said the maximum repayment period is 33 years at 5 per cent interest for modest homes.

Further information on FHA services may be obtained by contacting the Moundsville office located in the Federal Office Building, 324 7th St., any week day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; or at the county agent's office in the Brooke County Courthouse at Wellsburg on the second Friday morning of each month.

Various Contests Will Be Held At Club's Jamboree

Andy Starts Final Season

This week Andy Griffith began filming the final 30 chapters in the TV saga of the sheriff of Mayberry. After next season (his eighth) Andy quits TV except for a special a year the following three years on CBS.

Hal Humphrey

It will have been a fruitful eight years for both Andy and his millions of fans. He and those around him have managed to bring to TV one of its better comedies. The laugh track didn't have to be turned up to hide weak writing, and the small-town humor was kept honest, usually by Andy himself who always makes a point of working with the writers.

-:-

THE Andy Griffith Show has maintained characterization. The people in it never are made to act out of character to accommodate a particular situation.

One knows in advance now what attitude Andy will take when son Opie rebels against some new descipline. Much of the show's humor is derived from our knowing and anticipating these reactions.

When Floyd the barber finds the rent on his shop is being raised by Otis, who has become his new landlord, we're pretty sure he's going to protest. But it's the form of protest and Andy's failure to see how it will reverberate against his functioning as an efficient sheriff that keeps us hooked for the half-hour.

AUNT BEE'S involvement in starting a Chinese restaurant or Andy's visit to Barney on his new job (Don Knotts as a guest this season) were generally predicaments rooted in the characterizations which are kept carefully hewed to a line of genuine people and give the viewers an atmosphere not felt on many TV shows these days.

There is a tendency in comedy shows on TV now to have all of the characters pressing for laughs. Everyone is a comedian, or trying to be, by having something funny to say. This can become awfully boring to viewers who may not consider all of those joke lines so funny.

This type has been matched in numbers the past season by the gimmick type of comedy, i.e. Captain Nice in which the hero flies or "It's About Time" wherein the characters are from another age. Neither, incidentally, will be around next season, because they were infantile in conception and audiences did not think them funny.

BESIDES tickling your funny bone, it's relaxing to watch the Andy Griffith Show. There isn't the frastic rushing around you get with many of TV's comedy series, hence you have time to savor the humor of the situation.

Some so-called experts thought Don Knotts' leaving the show two seasons ago would hurt it irreparably. Naturally he was missed, but not to a point where the fans stopped watching. In fact, Andy's Nielsen ratisg during the recent season was as high or higher than any of the previous six years.

In the series' upcoming eighth and last season, things are to be about the same with the sheriff of Mayberry. One new addition will be Paul Hartman, who will have a fix-it shop next to the barber shop. Howard McNear, who is Floyd the barber, has not been in the best of health, so Hartman's character is being added to spell McNear somewhat.

WHY IS ANDY quitting? For one thing, his manager, Dick Linke, has committed him to a two-picture-a-year contract with Universal beginning next year and running through 1973. Andy really thought it was time to move on to other things two years ago, but CBS prevailed upon him to stay — and the price was right.

Now, however, everyone involved feels the series has run its course. There are only so many predicaments Andy and his gang can get in and out of, unless they want to begin rewriting them, which no one wants to do.

Also, doing two pictures a year is a lot less work than filming 30 half-hour episodes, including a TV special. Andy is 41 and doesn't need to work this hard any more. If the general run of comedy series on TV doesn't show some improvement, he really will be missed from the 1968-69 TV scene.

Retailers Rap Tax Proposal

The executive committee of the East Liverpool Merchants Association voiced strong objections Thursday afternoon to a proposal placed before the General Assembly by Gov. James Rhodes' administration calling for a new 1 per cent gross receipts tax on retailers, expected to raise $100 million or more a year.

Meeting in special session at the Chamber of Commerce office, the ELMA executives ordered telegrams sent to State Sen. John Longsworth of Salem and State Rep. Clarence L. Wetzel of Lisbon urging them to "actively oppose" the measure.

The businessmen also agreed to send a wire to Gov. Rhodes advising that they "strongly oppose" the "unfair tax."

The proposed gross receipts tax would affect all retailers except those handling food.

It was among new measures proposed at Columbus to raise $253 additional for education.

It stirred immediate opposition from retailers throughout Ohio, who commented it would mean economic ruin for many businessmen. They added that businessmen would not be able to absorb the new tax burden and would be forced to pass it on to consumers.

A companion proposal would apply the state sales tax to laundry, dry cleaning, parking, beer, cigarettes and other items and services, lower the starting bracket from the present 31 cents and boost the state levy on cigarettes from five to seven cents a pack.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Exercise Brings Zing!

Stretch to pull figure out of the dumps and banish bulges. To be beautiful, bodies must be used and circulation roused. Muscles must pull and be released. Sedentary workers particularly need to stretch, bend and move. Obviously nature didn't intend for us to just sit. All Ida Jean Kain sitters, join us. Try a free - wheeling stretch.

WORK-A-DAY sitters slowly acquire a pincushion of fat along the outer thighline, just below the waist. You can pull off that bulge with a stretch-bend-hold routine. The exercise technique is to direct the pull through the fat pad with an up-stretch carried through to a sidebend. At the peak of the bend, hold the muscle contraction for a slow count of six, or for six seconds. Not longer.

This stretch - bend, known as the stretch - reflex, stimulates contraction. Make sure you put the pull through the bulge, stretch below the bulge.

Position: Standing, feet well apart. Arch arms overhead, fingers interlaced, palms turned up. Pull up with girdle musles, then pull in forcibly. In this way the diagonal muscles, the obliques, which bound the sides of the silhouette below and above waist area, will be brought into the contraction.

ACTION: Stretch up, centering the pull through the trunk, then slowly bend sidewards, as far as comfortable. Look up. At this point in the stretch - bend, hold. Hold the contraction to a slow count of six. Slowly come back to upright position, again contract with girdle muscles, pull slim through midsection by stretching up. Bend to the opposite side and hold. Repeat three complete times.

Stretching, coupled with sidebending helps you to feel slim and supple. Well, maybe you won't feel supple at first, or slim either. But you will if you ease into exercises gradually, pull smoothly and feel the rhythm. Six minutes will do for a starter.

Resistance to exercise is mainly mental. Start and the stretch impulse finishes itself. Exercise is fun and slimming.

Loan Applications Accepted To Assist In Rural Housing

The Farmers Home Administration is accepting loan applications from rural families who need to improve their housing, Boyd M. Turner Jr., the agency's supervisor for Hancock, Brooke, Marshall and Ohio counties, said today.

Funds are available, Turner pointed out, to build, improve or repair rural homes and related facilities. In addition to major construction, funds are available to modernize homes—add bathrooms, install central heating systems, modern kitchens, as well as make other home improvements.

Funds also can be used to buy an existing house or to buy a minimum adequate building site or buy a newly-constructed house.

To be eligible for an FHA loan, one must live in a rural area or own land in a rural area; "be without decent, safe, sanitary housing," and be unable to finance the needed improvements at reasonable rates and terms from other lenders in the area.

Turner said the maximum repayment period is 33 years at 5 per cent interest for modest homes.

Further information on FHA services may be obtained by contacting the Moundsville office located in the Federal Office Building, 324 7th St., any week day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; or at the county agent's office in the Brooke County Courthouse at Wellsburg on the second Friday morning of each month.

Various Contests Will Be Held At Club's Jamboree

All field events will begin at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded for all races and contests. ## Junior Editors Quiz on TROTTERS

QUESTION: In harness racing, what is the difference between trotters and pacers?

ANSWER: Harness racing is an exciting sport in which fast moving horses pull light, two-wheeled sulkies and their drivers around a track. Horses carrying jockies on their backs are of the breed called Thoroughbred, but for harness racing a sturdier kind of horse is used, called a Standardbred. Racing horses run in different ways which are called gaits. The gait of the Thoroughbred is the gallop. Harness horses use two other gaits; either the trot or the pace. The difference between these gaits is shown above (top). Legs whose hoofs come down on the ground at the same time are shown in black. Look carefully and you can see that in the trot, the opposite back and front feet come down together, while in the pace, both feet come down together on the same side. Now how about figuring out the gait of the large horse? (You guessed it—it's the trot). Modern harness racing events usually feature both trotting and pacing, but there are generally more pacing races because pacing is faster.

'Favoritism' Charge Denied During Gambling In W.Va.

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia Police Supt. T. A. Welty said Thursday there was "no basis in fact" in the charges of a former state policeman that favoritism was being shown in carrying on liquor and gambling raids in northern West Virginia.

Welty said the charges made by Junior Nelson, 28, of Beverly were studied and "we could find no basis in fact for their being made. ."

Nelson, who had been assigned to the Kingwood detachment of the state police, was dropped from the force June 5 after serving 17 months of an 18-month probationary period.

He made the charges in an affidavit given to the Morgantown Post.

Welty said, "It was the considered opinion of all his (Nelson's) supervisors that he should not be continued in the department. He was discharged. . .for not satisfactorily completing his probationary period."

Welty added that Nelson "was given every consideration during his service in this organization. Immediately after Nelson's discharge, he went to a Morgantown newspaper and made certain allegations against the department and its members."

The superintendent concluded, "We have conducted a complete and full investigation and we could find no basis in fact for their being made."
